Walk Straight, or Sleep Gangsters, Cruel, Silent Psychological Prosperity Name the New Planet

—By Arthur Brisbane—

LOS ANGELES, March 17—Interesting things on this Pacific Coast. Trees that were growing when Christ was born, earth's biggest ocean, greatest water power, wonderful future.

But most interesting, as a measure of our civilization, are the gentlemen "sleeping it off" on the way North from the Mexican boundary.

A car comes wobbling, a representative of government stops it. The driver, ordered to get out and walk a straight line, can not do it. He must park his car by the roadside, and is told to "lie down by the roadside and sleep it off."

Six were lying down sleeping it off, their cars parked nearby, recently.

Some times there are more than six. California provides for driving while drunk, a penalty more severe than "sleeping it off." It is, perhaps, only fair to make certain allowances for our prohibition situation and temptations beyond the border.

Gangsters are not kind to each other.

John "Billiken" Rito, described by police as "a bootleg racketeer," a member of the "Bugs" Moran gang, lies in the morgue. Wires with which his arms, hands and ankles were bound, when he was taken out of the Chicago river have been removed. The police wonder who burned the tip ends of his fingers in the process of torturing him before he was murdered, and why they did it. They will never know.

Racketeers kill and don't talk.

Business men here are cheerful about the "business situation." Los Angeles income tax receipts for 1929 show an increase of $5,000,000 over 1928.

The Los Angeles Examiner prints daily brief statements of FACT showing improving conditions.

What people think decides what they are. Prosperity is to a considerable extent a matter of psychology.

Once a man was fastened in a chair, his feet put in warm water, and, as a practical joke, he was shown a razor, of which the blunt end was drawn across the soles of his bare feet. He was told, "you will bleed to death painlessly in this warm water." He didn't lose a drop of blood, but he died.

Don't let prosperity die in that fashion, killed by imagination.

President Hoover, like a good family doctor for the nation, says nothing or says things that are encouraging. There is a great deal of value in that.

Buy what you want, beginning with a good automobile, buy it NOW and then enjoy it NOW. Life does not last forever. Keep it busy and full.

What name would you suggest for the new planet just added to our solar family, revolving around the sun, endless millions of miles outside of our orbit?

The name should be chosen among these six:

Copernicus, Tycho Brahe, Kepler, Galileo, Descartes, Newton.

They are the six greatest astronomical names in history, and represent six nations, Poland, Denmark, Germany, Italy, France, England.

Genius has no nationality.

St. Patrick was honored in the West and in the East today with green colors, friendly cartoons, editorials, and slices of ice cream decorated with shamrocks. St. Patrick's fame has lasted because he wasn't afraid of anybody, mentally or physically.

To defy the Irish King himself, in his castle on the hill of Tara, with his red hair and no clothing, but a raw bull's hide, took courage.

The death of Primo De Rivera, former Spanish dictator, killed by heart disease, reminds you that being dictator is a wearing job. It takes such a man as Mussolini to stand it, for a long time.

The Italian ruler establishes a "minor" class of citizen, not obliged to enter the Italian army.

This is planned to keep Italians in foreign countries interested in Italy.

Wise Mussolini.

BLAST KILLS STUDENT IN BACK BAY

Girl, 19, Is Hurled Through a Window After Being Trapped by Flames

Fire and a hot-air explosion that hurled her from a third floor window on Ivy st., Back Bay, today, took the life of Miss Anna Brosseau, 19, Simmons College student.

She died at City Hospital four hours after awakening to find herself trapped in her room by flames.

Leaping from her bed with her nightgown blazing, she ran to a window. There was an explosion as she reached it, and she was hurled out, striking the roof of a small shed and then dropping to the ground. In addition to burns, she suffered internal injuries.

Another occupant of the three-story brick building, Donald Richardson, leaped from a second-floor window but suffered only bruises and shock when he landed in a muddy grass plot in front.

THREE MORE TRAPPED

Three other occupants of the building, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Wiley, on the first floor, and Mrs. Donald Richardson, who was in the Wileys' kitchen, had their exits cut off except to the basement. This opening they took, and fled to safety through the basement rear door.

From the second floor, Mrs. Marion Sanborn, a Simmons College student and her husband, fled to the street by the stairway just before its use was cut off by smoke and flame.

The fire, according to Fire Chief

ATTORNEY IN MOVE TO END HEARING AS ILLEGAL

Witness Refuses to Testify at Probe; Bank Accounts of Ex-Raider Submitted

Attorney - General Warner at 2 p. m. today asked Governor Allen to request the Legislature to grant him more power, money and time for the investigation. He asked specific provision to compel summoned witnesses to testify by amendment of the act authorizing the probe, as acts of crime may come within the scope of the inquiry. He asked at least until May 1 and declared that funds available (said to be $15,000) were insufficient to conclude.

There were six major developments today at the resumed public hearing of the attorney-general's investigation of Oliver B. Garrett, pensioned Boston police liquor raider.

6—Evidence that there was a safety deposit box at the Exchange Trust Co. in the names of Oliver Bridge (Bridge is Garrett's middle name) and Mrs. Woodside (name of Mrs. Garrett by first marriage).

Brissenden, referred to by Francis LaCroix as one of his two informants that bootleggers and questionable resorts were on the Boston milk route of the Garretts' Pine Grove Dairy Farm, was questioned yesterday by Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner and Damon E. Hall, his

GARRETT, OUTSIDE LOOKING IN, HEARS ABOUT HIS FARM DEALS

EX-RAIDER THERE WHEN ATTORNEY HURLS BOMBSHELL INTO DRAMATIC PROCEEDINGS

When Tuesday's hearing opened, Oliver B. Garrett was not in the committee room. He stood outside, looking through the glass windows and thus watched the proceedings.

Damon E. Hall, special assistant attorney-general, opened the hearing with a statement dealing with the alleged appearance of Garrett at the fairs in Marshfield and South Weymouth at a time when he was said to have been ill at home.

Mr. Hall said:

"In connection with the testimony of Dr. Kingman, as to seeing Oliver B. Garrett at the fair in South Weymouth on August 19 and 20, 1927, and at the Marshfield fair on Aug. 25, 26 and 27, I desire to offer a letter from the commissioner of agriculture to the attorney-general."

The letter stated that the Weymouth Agricultural Society had held its annual fair at South Weymouth on Aug. 19 and 20, 1927, and that the Marshfield fair had been held Aug. 24, 25, 26, 27. An inspector from the department of agriculture had visited both fairs.

Hall then continued: "In that connection, I desire to call attention to the testimony of Dr. McCormack as to Garrett's condition on Aug. 14, 1927, in which the doctor reported he was worse; raving in pain, and semi-conscious."

The first witness today was Ernest S. Rhind of Upland rd., Newtonville, credit manager for the Cherry-Burrell Co., of Charlestown, which deals in dairy farm equipment.

He testified to sales of dairy farm machinery and farm supplies to Florence H. Garrett, between June 20, and Oct. 20, 1927.

This testimony showed total purchases of $2,825.04.

These entries were debit entries on the company's ledger cards, all in the name of Florence H. Garrett.

Credit entries were then read from a card, showing that the account was closed Nov. 16 of that year.

Mr. Hall asked: "Will you tell us whether the credit payments were made by check or in cash?"

A.—All payments were in checks.

Witness then took up the accounts that his company opened with the Pine Grove farm in Hingham in August, 1927.

In answer to a questi n, he said that the name of Mrs. F. H. Garrett was entered as owner. These debit accounts showed that the farm purchased supplies and machinery from Aug. 25, 1927, to April 25, 1929, totalling $5508.24.

The total of the two accounts, according to the witness, was $8330.20.

Witness then read from other ledger cards credit payments made by the farm for the supplies.

Atty. Hall then read into the record details of a series of notes signed by F. H. Redden for Pine Grove Dairy.

One was for $427, and eleven for $61 each, all dated Aug. 30, 1928.

Garrett in Gray as Nifty as a Fashion Plate

"Ollie" Garrett was again a perfect sartorial picture, as though he had stepped out of a Fifth avenue tailor advertisement.

He had a nifty gray suit, gray fedora and gray necktie.

His top coat was also light. He might well be called "the man in gray."

balances totalled $10,431.01, and bank withdrawals during November totalled $10,667.14.

Brookline Trust Co., withdrawals in November, $386.07; Hingham Trust Co., October balance, $1,497; Boulevard Trust Co., October balance $7,35; Brighton Five Cents Savings Bank, $1084.90 withdrawals in November; Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, $1065.48 withdrawals in November; South Weymouth Savings Bank, $4027.94 withdrawals in November; Exchange Trust Co., savings $477.11.

Merchants' Co-operative Bank balance October 31, $675; withdrawals, $783.10; First National Bank of Boston, savings department, balance, $407.70; Brookline Trust Co., savings department, balance, $26.29; withdrawals, $26.58.

Newton Co-operative Bank, balance, $1140; withdrawals, $1260.

Nonantum Co-operative Bank, balance $785; withdrawals, $858.80.

Exchange Trust Co., Savings department, $43.37, all withdrawn.

First National Bank of Boston, checking account, balance $14.27, all withdrawn.

National Shawmut Bank, savings $59.45, nothing withdrawn.

Charlestown Co-operative Bank, balance $550, withdrawals $411.54.

Hall then offered in evidence records of the First National Bank of Boston relative to the account of Florence Woodside.

He showed that this account had been opened July 10, 1929, with a deposit of $405, followed with a deposit on January 18, 1930, of $10. On a total of $415 the bank paid interest of $2.70, making a total balance of $417.70.

Hall next offered a card of the Exchange Trust Company, showing a Christmas savings account of F. H. Garrett, 1 Claremont st., Newton, and copies of checks for $101 paid to F. H. Garrett on December 8, 1929.

He also showed a card of the Exchange Trust Company showing account of Oliver B. Garrett, 134 Berkeley st., and copy of check for $254.50 paid to him on December 2, 1929.

Another card of the Exchange Trust Co. showing account of F. H. Garrett and paid on December 1, 1928, of $96. He also showed a copy of a communication from the bank dated March 10, 1930, addressed to Atty.-General Warner saying: "We do not have nor never have had a safety deposit box in the name of O. B. Garrett, but we have one in the joint names of Oliver Bridge and Mrs. Woodside. Bridge never had access to the box, but Mrs. Woodside did on June 22, August 20, October 7, October 31 and November 5, 1929."

Norman D. Hall Chandler, an accountant, who is retained by the attorney-general's office to make a compilation of the Garrett bank account, was called to the stand.

Q.—Will you refer to your tabulation, will you tell us the totals? A.—In 1923, deposits $178.38; 1924, deposits $2640; 1925, $6344.51; 1926, $18,770.65; 1927, $27,420.24; 1928, $39,575.70; 1929, $28,029.80, a total of $122,959.28.

Q.—So far as you can tell, how much was deposited in cash and how much in checks? A.—In cash $55,640.60 and in checks $21,991.09. The balance is yet undetermined as the bank has not yet furnished the information.

Notes Not Paid, Dairy Equipment Reclaimed

Q.—Have these been paid? A.—I must answer you in this way: we made new financial arrangements after we reclaimed equipment, due to non-payment of notes. We gave them credit for an amount equal a fair market value of the equipment reclaimed.

Q.—Can you tell us the date when the last of these notes was paid? The witness said it was March 10, 1930.

Q.—When last interviewed by me, you had this note in your possession? A.—Yes.

Q.—I show you photostat copy of the note. Was that it? The witness glanced at the copy held in Hall's hand and said it was a copy of the note.

Q.—Was this series of eight notes we are now taking up, given as a result of a talk with Mr. or Mrs. Garrett? A.—Yes, with Mrs. Garrett. After reclaiming the equipment, $403.75 was due us and I wrote a letter to Mr. Garrett, June 24, 1929, at police headquarters. I attached a statement of the Pine Grove Farm account. It showed the balance due us and we asked for a check in settlement.

Q.—How did you happen to write the letter? A.—Trying to get the money to wind up the account.

Q.—In reply did you receive this letter?

Hall then showed witness a letter dated June 21, 1929, which said: "I will be to your office on Wednesday or Thursday about my bill. I must talk to you before paying you any money.

(Signed) "F. H. Redden."

The answer to the question and exhibit was: "Yes."

Q.—In consequence of that letter, did Mrs. Garrett come to your office? A.—Yes, and I explained to her how the money was owing to us. In substance, she said it was not convenient for her to pay in full, and asked what accommoda- tion we could offer. It got down to this basis where she agreed she could pay $50 a month. I was willing to accept this arrangement, providing both she and her husband signed the note. There were eight of the notes, each interest-bearing.

Mr. Hall then offered as exhibits the eight notes, dated June 28, 1929, for a total of $403.75, payable at the Brookline Trust Co. and signed by Florence H. Garrett and Oliver B. Garrett of 9 Parkvale ave., Allston.

John L. Carten, Jr., farmer and cattle dealer of West Peabody, testified as to sales of cattle made at his farm to a man named Dudley Kelley.

Q.—To whom were these purchases billed? A.—To O. B. Garrett, High st., Hingham.

Q.—What sales did you make? A.—On Dec. 16, 1923, I sold four cows and one calf, for a total of $324.

Q.—How was payment made? A.—By cash at the time of sale.

Payment in Cash for His Blooded Cattle

Q.—Did you make any other sales? A.—Yes, on August 15, 1927, I sold them four cows and one calf for a total of $770.

Q.—To whom? To the same man. He gave his name as Dudley Kelley.

Q.—Payment was made in what manner? A.—$670 at the time of sale and $100 on delivery next day.

Q.—Have you the receipt for delivery? A.—Yes.

The witness then produced the receipt, which was signed by F. H. Garrett.

The next witness was Paul W. Bartlett of Wakefield, a bookkeeper with the firm of Charles J. Jagger, dealer in pumping equipment, of Boston.

He testified that sales made to Florence H. Garrett in June of 1927, and August of 1928, totalled $1203.46.

A list of payments of the account charged to Mrs. Garrett, showed that various amounts were paid by check drawn on a Brookline bank from December, 1928, to November, 1928. Cash payments, he said, were made at various times from March, 1929, to June of 1929.

The name of Alfred D. Brissenden was called as the next witness.

In response to this name, Attorney William H. Shea arose and said he represented him. The attorney said his client declined to appear on the grounds that his rights and privacy under the Constitution were affected.

Mr. Shea then added: "I desire also to question the constitutionality of the act under which the attorney general is empowered to carry on an inquisitorial investigation."

Mr. Hall arose and addressed Attorney General Warner:

"Yesterday," said Mr. Hall, "Mr. Brissenden did respond to a summons by you and was questioned by us. He raised no question then about his constitutional rights."

Mr. Hall continued that the man is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Garrett and "inasmuch as he now declines to come before you, I suggest that it will be necessary to postpone his appearance until a court order may be secured, or proceed in some other way."

Shea inquired if Warner would indicate at this place, but the attorney-general replied:

"Not at the present time. Do I understand Brissenden declines to appear because of a question of constitutionality of this act?"

"Yes," replied Shea.

Hall offered a statement showing bank transactions involved in the Garrett case.

This is the schedule of balances in banks as of October 31, 1929, and withdrawals during November of 1929, in the following names:

Florence H. Garrett, F. H. Garrett, Florence Garrett, F. H. Redden, Florence H. Redden, Florence Woodside, F. H. Woodside, trustee for Oliver B. Garrett, and Oliver B. Garrett.

As of October 31, 1929, the bank balances totalled $2,640.51; withdrawals during November totalled $2,640.51.

Q.—Did you make a compilation of the balances which remain to the credit of the Garretts as of October 31, 1929? A.—Yes, $10,431.01.

Q.—Was all this withdrawn in November, 1929? A.—No, there were some balances. There was $1.97 at the Hingham Trust Co., $72.85 at the Boulevard Trust Co., $407.70 at the First National Bank of Boston, and $59.45 at the National Shawmut Bank.

The first witness of the afternoon session was Eugene Hayes of Readville, a horse trainer. He testified that he had been in that business "practically all my life."

Q.—Do you know Oliver B. Garrett? A.—Not very well.

Q.—Have you had any business dealings with him? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Do you know Dudley Mulrein? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you sell him a pedigreed race horse? Also, two Guernsey cows? The witness said these sales were in January of 1928.

Q.—The horse was Florence G, was it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the selling price of the horse? A.—It was $1500.

Q.—Of the two Guernsey cows? A.—The price was $200 each. The total of all was $100.

Q.—Did Mulrein pay for them? A.—Yes.

Q.—In cash? A.—Yes.

Q.—The horse and two cows were taken away by a Mr. Fay, a truckman, were they not? A.—Yes.

Q.—Fay took them to the Pine Grove Farm, didn't he? A.—I don't know where he took them.

Q.—Did you have any other dealings with Mulrein? A.—Yes. I sold him Tom Thumb.

Q.—When? A.—In June, 1928.

Q.—Price? A.—$500.

Q.—Did you sell him any other horses? A.—No. I gave him one as a gift. Atty. Hall, with a laugh, said: "Well, I guess we don't want to bother with gift horses." Witness was then excused.

Hall then called out the name of a Mr. Johnson. There was no response. Then Hall addressed the Attorney-General:

"Mr. Attorney-General, Mr. Lyons, a driver in Boston for the so-called Pine Grove Farm, has so far failed to appear. He has been summoned twice. Mr. Brissenden is the other driver, but he declines to appear on grounds already set forth by his attorney.

"I believe my next witness, Mr. Johnson, will appear and may be on his way here now. If he doesn't appear, I suggest we adjourn until tomorrow morning."

At this point, Asst. Atty.-Gen. George B. Lourie suggested trying to reach Johnson by telephone.

Recess was called during an intervale in which Lourie went to the telephone.

Up to this time Garrett had not appeared for the afternoon session. His only appearance in the room in the morning was when he rushed in to hear Atty. Shea's protest on constitutional grounds on behalf of his client.

Mrs. Garrett has not been seen at the State House all day.

During the temporary recess, Asst. Atty. Gen. Lourie investigated the absence of Johnson, an automobile salesman, and learned that it was due to an error in the attorney general's office.

Thereupon Atty. Gen. Warner adjourned the hearing until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Maybe Warner Will See Garrett's Tax Return

IF Atty.-Gen. Warner is interested in the Garretts' 1929 federal income tax return he will encounter some difficulties in obtaining it.

In the first place, Deputy Collector George W. Britt pointed out today that trying to find the return in the thousands now awaiting perusal at Pearl st. headquarters, would be like looking for a needle in a haystack.

When the return is recorded, federal authorities will not be at liberty to divulge unless permission is obtained from Commissioner Lucas at Washington and the local collector, Thomas White, is summoned by the attorney general.

Witnesses Bare Garrett's Finances

Norman A. Chandler, an accountant for the attorney-general, testified at the Garrett inquiry today: "From 1923 to 1929, inclusive, bank deposits under the various names involved in the Garrett case totalled $122,959.28. Only a small balance remains." (Staff photos.)

John L. Carten, Jr., of West Peabody, testified: "I sold blooded cattle to Dudley Kelley, which were billed to and paid for by O. B. Garrett."

ISSUE SUMMONS FOR HUSTON'S ACCOUNT

Senate Body Defied by C. O. P. Chairman in Probe of $36,100 Gift

Washington, March 18—Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, today refused to give the Senate lobby committee the records of his brokerage accounts into which he admitted he put $36,100 given by the Union Carbide Company toward the Muscle Shoals lobby.

Senator Walsh (D), of Montana, immediately issued a subpoena for the brokerage books of Blythe & Bonner, of New York, to produce the records.

The account, Huston admitted, was in the name of W. E. Moore, but was "100 per cent" his.

Senator Robinson (R.) of Indiana protested and said: "You might just as well subpoena Raskob's accounts." This brought on a heated wrangle on the part of the Indiana senator and Walsh. Robinson charged that the lobby committee was playing politics.

"There might be Republican campaign funds in the account for all we know," he shouted. "Why not subpoena Raskob's accounts, too. It is just the same."

"Are Republican campaign funds there, too?" Walsh asked Robinson.

"There might be for all we know. We are investigating Muscle Shoals. Let's broaden this and subpoena Raskob's accounts, too."

Huston objected to the committee delving into all his private affairs and the subpoena was then issued in modified form.

Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, asked Huston if he knew of any "lobbying" by Raskob and Huston replied he knew Raskob was a member of an organization advocating repeal of the prohibition amendment.

Mr. Darrow, upon his return, said he had been abroad long enough to learn the United States had not a friend in the world. This he held to be due to this country's insistence on a repayment of war loans and the high tariff.

His dry debate with Senator Brookhart will be held tomorrow night at Mecca Temple. Friday night he meets Clarence True Wilson in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

GIRL KILLED IN FIRE BLAST

Daniel F. Sennott, started on the second floor from a cause not determined. On that floor two painters were working, but they denied the blaze had started anywhere near them. There was a third painter at work on the first floor.

FLAMES SPREAD RAPIDLY

From the second floor the flames spread rapidly, both up and down, and thick smoke filled the building and seeped into apartment houses on either side. From these apartment houses several tenants were driven out.

When the firemen arrived, a second alarm was sounded. The firemen soon brought the flames under control.

Because the fire box is on the Brookline line, Fire Chief Selden R. Allen, with one piece of apparatus, responded.

After an investigation of the burned building, Chief Sennott estimated the damage at approximately $8000.

Five Flee Blaze in Lexington Home

The blaze apparently started near a fireplace on the first floor and worked up to the second, causing damage estimated at $2500.

Mrs. Randall, awakened by smoke, aroused her husband and the children, Donald, five; Rogers two, and Ralph, six months. They were cared for by neighbors.

special assistant for the investigation ordered by the Legislature.

Today, when his name was called, William H. Shea, an attorney, arose and informed the attorney-general that Brissenden refused to answer his summons. He said he had been retained as counsel for the former manager of the Pine Grove milk routes and that his client declined to respond on the grounds that his rights and privacy under the Constitution was effected.

"I also desire to question the constitutionality of the legislative act under which the attorney-general is empowered to carry on an inquisitorial investigation," said Shea.

The announcement created considerable of a sensation with its accompanying visions of court procedure and a possible legal tangle carried to the Supreme Court.

Hall, who as usual was interrogating the witnesses, arose and addressed Attorney-General Warner:

"Yesterday Brissenden did respond to a summons and was questioned by you and me. He raised no question then of the matter of his rights.

"He is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Garrett and inasmuch as he now declines to come before you, I suggest it will be necessary to postpone his appearance until an order of court may be secured, or proceed in some other way."

MAY GO TO COURT

Shea then inquired if Warner cared to indicate when a move would be made to secure an order of court requiring Brissenden's appearance and the attorney-general abruptly replied:

"No." He added, as if not sure he had heard aright: "Do I understand Brissenden declines to appear because of a question regarding the constitutionality of this act?"

Yes," Shea answered.

Hall then disclosed that William Lyons, another driver for the Pine Grove milk route, had failed to respond to a summons.

"I have tried twice to get Lyons here," he said, "but he has failed to appear. He may take the same attitude as Brissenden does."

To discuss this unforeseen development a five-minute recess was taken, after which the record of all bank accounts in the names of Garrett or Mrs. Garrett between 1923 and 1929 was introduced.

Of the $122,959.35 shown to have been banked during that period, $35,646.60 was known to have been in cash deposits and $21,991.09 in checks.

The nature of the remainder has not yet been learned from the banks.

ACCOUNTS CLOSED

The disclosure that on Oct. 31, 1928, only $10,431.01 remained in the various bank accounts created considerable stir in the crowded State House hearing room.

Guesses were made on every hand as to whether the remainder had been spent or transferred elsewhere and whether the $122,959.25 balance represented the entire fortune gathered by the liquor dealer and his wife in the six years that followed their existence in the modest circumstances previously described at the hearing.

Then followed the revelation that last November, when the state tax authorities had their guns trained on the Garretts, all but four small accounts were closed out by withdrawals totalling $10,667.14.

A communication between officials of the Exchange Trust Co. and Atty.-Gen. Warner, dated March 10, 1930, was then introduced. It read:

"We do not have and never have had a safety deposit box in the name of O. B. Garrett, nor have we one in the joint names of Oliver Bridge and Mrs. Woodside.

(Garrett's middle name is Bridge and Woodside was Mrs. Garrett's name by her first marriage.)

The letter continued: "Bridge never had access to the box but Mrs. Woodside did on June 22, Aug. 20, Oct. 7, Oct. 31 and Nov. 5, 1928."

The usual overflow crowd attempted to gain entrance to the hearing room before the session opened. Garrett peered in through a window but did not immediately enter. Mrs. Garrett was not present.

MAY CALL GARRETTS

Both may be called as witnesses tomorrow, the last day set aside for inquiry with specific relation to circumstances bearing upon Garrett's pensioning.

There will follow a two-week period of secret investigation by the attorney-general's investigators and a Boston Bar Association committee into various related lines that have so far developed.

For the third time since the hearings began, Hall today intimated that Garrett in August of 1927, following the accident on which he based his pension claim, was not nearly as ill as the records of Dr. John S. McCormack, his personal physician, disclosed him to be.

He read into the record the dates of the Weymouth Agricultural Society Fair in 1927 as Aug. 19 and 20, calling attention to Dr. McCormack's records showing Garrett ambulant and semi-conscious on Aug. 14, and the previous testimony of Dr. Henry Kingman, veterinarian and cattle fancier, that Garrett attended the fair and bought cattle from him there.

Ernest S. Rhind of Newtonville, credit manager of the Charlestown Farm Equipment Company, which supplies machinery to the Pine Grove Dairy, testified to farm supplies totaling $8330.20 bought on notes by the Garretts, and then revealed that some of the machinery was reclaimed for non-payment of notes and a refinancing arrangement entered into to provide payment of the balance after allowance had been made for the equipment repossessed.

The last note under this refinancing scheme was paid a week ago yesterday, he said.

COULDN'T PAY NOTES

The refinancing scheme was entered into after Rhind had written Garrett at polie eheadquarters last June, he testified. Mrs. Garrett appeared at the office a few days later, told him it was not convenient for her to pay in full and eight new notes were signed by Florence H. and Oliver B. Garrett for monthly payments of $50. Dudley Kelley was the name of a man who bought cattle for Garrett from John L. Carter, Jr., of West Peabody, according to Carter's testimony.

In July, 1927, he sold four cows and a calf to Kelley and the purchases were billed to O. B. Garrett, payment of $524 being made cash.

On August 15, 1927 (a day following that on which Garrett was reported semi-conscious) Carter said he made another sale to Dudley Kelley, four cows and a calf, for $524. A receipt tendered was signed "F. H. Garrett."

Paul W. Bartlett of Wakefield, bookkeeper for a pumping equipment company, testified to sales of machinery costing $1203.46 to Florence H. Garrett in 1927.

HOOVER ASKS A HUNT FOR GRAFT

Washington, March 18—President Hoover has asked the Department of Justice to conduct a report of the Senate committee of federal patronage and the sale of offices in the South, which had contained conditions there and requested an investigation.

"As a matter of fact," President Hoover said, "the report refers to incidents, men and conditions which have already been cleaned up by the action I took on the 26th of March last."

A system has been established under instructions to the various departments of the government, Mr. Hoover continued by which "these reprehensible practices have been absolutely stopped, and the system of purchase and sale of appointments, so far as it existed, has been ended."

CHARGE DOHENY WITH 'FRAUD'

Washington, March 18 (AP) — For the first time in the long series of criminal oil cases, the government today got before a jury the fact that the award of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve to a Doheny Co. had been termed by courts in civil cases as a fraud on the part of Edward L. Doheny, on trial for bribery, and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior.

Doheny on the stand today broke down and wept as he testified naval officers had appealed to his patriotism to make him bid on an oil storage contract.

The government charges he gave Fall a $100,000 bribe for Elk Hills lease. Doheny contends the $100,000 was only a loan to Fall.

Royal Salute Given n Rivera's Honor

Irun, Spain, March 18 (AP)—The Spanish batteries topping the hills along the French frontier roared a 21-gun saulte today as the body of Primo de Rivera crossed the border into spain. Thus was the former dictator, who died in Paris Sunday night, honored with the same salute that would be given a king.

As the train halted at the little railway station here, where sometimes exiles have seen their last of Spain, the coffin was removed and placed in a chapel of the station.

SISTERS MEET AFTER 20 YRS.

Salem, March 18 (AP)—Two sisters, separated for nearly 20 years but who lived in the same apartment block for the last year, each ignorant of the other's identity, today were planning a reunion scene with their aged mother, Mrs. Celanie Gravel, of Lewiston, Me.

The sisters are Mrs. Joseph Beaulieu and Mrs. Clarina Sylvain.

Almost two decades ago Mrs. Sylvain married and went to Canada to live. Later, she came to Salem. Three years ago Mrs. Beaulieu came here from Lewiston. About a year ago she moved into the block at 41 Harbor st. One of her neighbors was Mrs. Sylvain. They became acquainted and enjoyed each other's friendship. Then they discovered they were sisters.

Montforte Is Given Long Prison Term

New York, March 18 (AP)—A sentence of seven and a half to 15 years in Sing Sing, the maximum allowed by law, was given today to Anthony Montforte, president of the Plasterers' Information Bureau, an alleged building racketeering organization, who was convicted on March 10 of extortion.

Bronx County Judge James M. Barrett sentenced Michael McCloskey, delegate of the wood lathers' union, who was convicted with Montforte, to five to ten years.

CAPONE HOME GUARDED FOR HIS RETURN

Gang Leader Is Believed to Be on a Train Nearing Chicago With Henchmen

Chicago, March 18 (AP)—"Scarface" Al Capone today was "lost" in that fog of mystery that shrouds gangland's activities.

Released from the penitentiary in Philadelphia, he was variously reported as heading homeward in a train, an airplane and an automobile.

The generally accepted report was that he was on the Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania system accompanied by Frank Cline, bodyguard who served ten months with his chief on charges of carrying guns, and others of his followers. The train's schedule calls for arrival in Chicago at 10 a. m.

Although city police posted squads near the Capone home and at other points where they thought the gangster might appear, federal authorities announced they would not molest him at present.

Capone is under $5000 bond on a federal contempt of court citation charging false affidavit that he was too ill at his Miami estate last year to return to Chicago and appear before a grand jury.

Rome University Grad Slain on Chicago "Ride"

Chicago, March 18 (AP)—The scourge of gangland—the "ride"—added another to the long list of North Side killings.

Peter Bica, who emigrated to America after graduating from the University of Rome, was dragged from a sedan by three men. A passerby said the three emptied their guns into the body of the victim.

Police attribute the slaying to a new liquor war.

Bica's family, however, say he was not allied with any gang but until recently conducted a grocery store. Robbery or extortion was no motive, police cited, for nearly $500 was found on the body.

the outcome of the conference, had a conversation with Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy today.

His discussion in an effort to effect a compromise between Italy and France was reported to have achieved nothing excepting to get the Italian Foreign Minister reiteration that Italy wants naval parity with France.

France, on the other hand, has set a total projected naval tonnage for herself far in excess of what the other powers think fit, and has refused with finality to grant Italy parity.

It was understood that Premier Mussolini was in direct telephonic communication with Signor Grandi today.

The conference today entered its ninth week, apparently still a long way from its goal of a naval limitation treaty.

In the words of Andre Tardieu, premier of France: "The conference continues." But even his professed optimism and assurances of eventual success failed to convince observers that appreciable progress is being made.

Most rigid secrecy has been invoked by the delegates to cloak their activities at this stage, but it appeared today that the French situation and the Franco-Italian differences still were, as they have been for weeks, the crux of difficulty at agreement.

Paris was understood to be negotiating privately with Rome for a better understanding of what the Mussolini Government means by parity with France.

There was a feeling in many quarters that much of the negotiations now will have to await return of M. Tardieu from Paris next week-end. He will return, he says, as many week-ends as he may be needed.

The March term of the federal grand jury was convened and went into session today.

HOWARD HITS 'GAG RULES'

Washington, March 18 (AP)—Representative Howard, 70-year-old Nebraska Democrat, today denounced what he termed "the gag rules of the House," and "absolute control by the triune will of three."

For the first time in his long life, the Nebraskan said, he was speaking with notes for fear he might pronounce "intemperate sentences should I speak extemporaneously."

He then proclaimed the U. S. Senate the only national forum preserving the power of free speech, and announced that in Washington was a man far more powerful than the President of the United States —"our princely colleague, the gentleman from New York, Mr. Snell, chairman of the gag rules committee of this House."

He did not name the other two persons concerned in what he called the rule of three."

Drove Ten Years Under False Name

Today he was fined $70 on a charge of giving a false name.

JAZZ BANKER IS HELD IN $30,000

Northampton, March 18 (AP)—Harold R. "Dick" Newcomb, bank manager by day and leader of "Dick Newcomb's Jazz Orchestra" by night, appeared in district court today and was committed in default of $30,000 bail on a charge of larceny of $15,000 from the Hampshire County Trust Company.

Newcomb was manager of the savings department. Ralph Hemenway, president of the bank, said it would be impossible to determine the actual amount of the alleged shortage until an audit is made, but declared that depositors would lose nothing.

Newcomb recently bought his musicians a special bus in which they traveled about New England. He had his own radio broadcasting plant and had restocked the orchestra's evening dress wardrobe.

33 Heavy Cruisers Needed for Defense of Nation

By FRED A. BRITTEN

Of Illinois, Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

(Written exclusively for Universal Service)

Washington, March 18—Results of the recent mimic battle between the "Blue" and "Black" fleets set out navy for supremacy of the Caribbean Sea, completely refute the wisdom of the United States agreeing with England to limit our big cruisers to 18 and possibly to 15 as provided in the tentative agreement.

The very thing we are agreeing to in the London Naval Conference with England is proved inadequate for our proper protection.

We should go ahead with the 15 cruisers authorized and the eight cruisers recently built or under construction. Two of the latter group have been completed and six remain to be constructed. They will carry 8-inch guns.

These 23 cruisers, in addition to the ten of the Memphis type of 7500 tons with six-inch guns, would give us 33 cruisers.

MEETS TONNAGE

Completion of these 33 cruisers will give us 305,000 tons in cruisers, which compares with the 327,000 tons already agreed upon for the United States between England, Japan and our delegates at London.

The agreement, however, is predicted upon our having about 18 big cruisers and the balance in small cruisers, for which we have no use. That is the fly in the ointment. We cannot accept the British proposal.

To have less than 33 cruisers would jeopardize our national defense in an emergency. The Navy general board in President Coolidge's administration recommended three additional airplane carriers. These should be constructed without delay. One has been authorized.

Our methods of fleet maneuvering have been greatly changed by the radio and avistion. We can spot and direct fire control from the air with great accuracy.

SMALLER CARRIERS

Aviation is one of the most desirable elements in warfare. To control the air would mean control of the seas. Our greatest necessity in addition to cruisers is small, fast airplane carriers.

The program I have here outlined, I believe, is absolutely essential to our national defense, regardless of what action is taken at the London conference.

We are still permitted under the Washington arms treaty to build about 50,000 tons of additional airplane carriers. I believe it would be wiser to build three carriers of say 14,000 tons each than to build large carriers, like the Saratoga and Lexington. They are around 40,000 tons each.

The smaller carriers could carry 80 or 90 airplanes. They would be easier to handle and more effective. The Saratoga and Lexington attended to Admiral L. M. Nulton, who took part in the recent mimic warfare, that we are in great need of cruisers and airplane carriers.

The efficacy of airplanes was proved in this "war." The "Blue" fleet found itself utterly at the mercy of the "enemy," which sent planes from the aircraft carrier Lexington while the Saratoga and Langley were riding choppy seas.

Having control of the air, the "Black" enemy technically could have wiped out the "Blue" fleet.

29 INDUSTRIES SHOW GAINS IN EMPLOYMENT

Increase in February Payrolls Also Demonstrates Dawn of Better Times in U. S.

Washington, March 18—An increase in employment in February was reported by the department of labor here, the figures for last month showing a gain of 0.1 per cent over the figures for January. Twenty-nine industries reported increased employment in February.

The bureau of labor reported also a 3.5 per cent increase in payrolls of manufacturing industries in February over the January figures.

The total number of establishments reporting in the eight groups for February was 35,515 having 4,821,771 employes, whose combined earnings in one week were $129,782,832.

The percentage of increase in employment and payroll totals in manufacturing industries, the bureau said, are based on returns made by 12,568 establishments in 54 of the principal manufacturing industries of the United States. These establishments in February, 1930, had 3,210,129 employes, whose combined earnings in one week were $85,935,650.

State House Girls Lose Look-in On Garrett Case

The latest "indoor sport" of the State House girls has been to spend part of their noon-hours near the Garrett hearing room, looking through the glass doors. Today the girls were disappointed, the hearing was adjourned at 12 o'clock until 2 o'clock. "We'll have to speak to the attorney-general about this," one of the girls suggested.

CHARGE SLAIN MAN LED BAND OF SWINDLERS

Taos, N. M., March 18 (AP)—The mysterious cloud surrounding the life and death of Arthur S. Manby was partly lifted today following the charge that Manby was a leader in the sub rosa "United States Secret Service Society," an alleged scheme for extortion and intimidation.

Manby's decapitated body was found in his home here last July 3. After a jury decided that the man died from natural causes a further investigation by State and Federal officers was started.

The latest development was an announcement by Herbert Cheetham, deputy sheriff of Taos, and a former Federal agent. Cheetham said a spell of fear which has closed the lips of certain persons in Taos has been broken, and the society has been revealed as nothing more than a confidence game.

In support of their plans members of the organization spoke of fabulous sums and rights to ancient land grants worth fortunes, it was asserted by the deputy. He declared Manby and his "Princess Terecita" were members.

Officers of the society always wrote in sums of millions or billions of dollars as a means of propaganda in the bunco system, but members were only called on with regard to their known resources. Membership was made more attractive, Cheetham said, with representations that the roster included present and past presidents of the United States, governors of many states and a long list of notables, including Benito Mussolini.

U. S. LEADS ALL IN DRUG USE

Detroit, March 18 (INS)—The United States is the leading 'dope' consuming nation, using twice as much 'dope' as China, and Detroit is the 'dope' center of the country," according to E. J. Rollings, vice-chairman of the Michigan Law Enforcement League.

"More narcotics pass through Detroit than through any other city in the United States," Rollings said.

He blamed lack of co-operation of the border prohibition and narcotic agents for the great quantities of booze and "dope" being smuggled into the country along the border.

DRUG HUNT ON LINER FAILS

New York March 18 (AP)—More than 100 government agents toiled throughout the night in a fruitless search of the French liner France on a tip that narcotics valued at $3,000,000 had been secreted aboard.

The vessel was met by two customs patrol boats and convoyed to her pier where the searching party had assembled. All visitors were barred from the customs enclosure.

The baggage of all passengers was subjected to a rigid investigation and agents dressed in dungarees and armed with flashlights searched every possible hiding place.

MOTHER GAVE 4 OF FAMILY TO NATION

Mothers were the "second line of defense" in the World War, as in all wars. Now the Government is going to send to France, that they may view the last resting place of their hero sons, the Gold Star mothers of America, those mothers whose sons made the supreme sacrifice. Today the Boston Evening American presents the 29th in a series of biographical sketches of heroes who gave their lives in the war —sketches made by the Gold Star mothers or widows themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dubay of 30 Rindge ave., Cambridge, have four stars on their service flag, and one of them is golden.

This elderly couple, who had 14 children, of whom half are now alive, contributed three sons and one daughter to the war.

Their records read:

Miss Ella Dubay (married after the war), who volunteered for service in France, but was kept in Washington because of knowledge of languages.

Ralph Dubay of Somerville, in medical corps in New York State.

Burt E. Dubay of New York, 19 months in the trenches, several times wounded, won four medals and refused frequent offers of promotions. Was sergeant and bayonet instructor. Once on night patrol ran into five Germans and killed four single-handed.

This soldier saw the battle in which his brother, Charles, was killed, but not once did the brothers meet in the A. E. F.

The fourth of this family, Charles E. Dubay, was 23 years old when he enlisted. He was killed one month before the end of the war.

Death came during the boy's duty as a runner. He was given a dangerous volunteer assignment to carry a message through a heavy barrage which had just killed two runners.

Charles, an athletic youth, who was a speedy runner, made his way through and gave the message. On the way back he was killed.

Charles left $10,000 war insurance, which is a big help to his mother.

Tomorrow the Boston Evening American will tell of Joseph Murphy, one of the first Charlestown boys to die in service.

MORRIS SUICIDE THREAT TOLD IN PARIS COURT

Paris, March 18 (INS)—Nelson Morris, millionaire Chicago meat packer, threatened to commit suicide unless his wife, the former Mlle Aubert, gave up her dancing career on the Paris stage, the Seine tribunal was told today.

This information was given by Mlle. Aubert's attorney, M. Paul-Boncour, at hearing of a suit by Morris against the Paris Music hall.

Morris is seeking to enjoin the theater from employing Mlle. Aubert until their divorce case is settled.

"Mr. Morris threatened suicide," M. Paul-Boncour declared, "but he still is very much alive, and Jane is still dancing."

The attorney told the court it would be "cruel" to deprive Mlle. Aubert of the thrill of the theater.

"First night applause," he said, "means more to her than all of Morris' millions. It means the success Jane dreamed of when she sang in her little attic room while helping her mother to eke out an existence making artificial flowers."

COLLEGE GRADS LEAVING NEW ENGLAND

By NANCY BREWSTER

Threatening New England Big Business is the migration of 70 per cent of its college graduates to points West, where jobs are lucrative and promising, Sidney B. Jewett, secretary of the New England Council, told the members of the South End Women's Club.

This problem looms large at the moment, he said and to seek a solution the Council will sponsor a conference at Providence next month.

Jewett told of Western manufacturers sending their agents to technical schools as early as February to "grab off" the best men who were to graduate in June.

"These technical graduates leave New England as soon as their education is complete," he said. New England trains them, but New England doesn't reap the benefits. We give them the educational advantages and the West gets the results. And so at the conference next month at Providence, heads of large firms, as the Edison Electric for instance, will address the meeting.

"They have a story of success of their college men and they will repeat it in the hope that the business men attending the conference will be willing to pay the price for New England college products.

WAIT TOO LONG

"New England leaders, thinking they are on the ground floor, wait until the week before graduation before signing up any of the men. They don't get the best men. The West has them. We want to keep our college men in New England where they can utilize their abilities and their knowledge to the success of New England.

The Council is backing a plan for a freight center, Jewett said, which would also involve the merging of the port docks. There is talk of merging the freight yards, south and north, into one large terminal, where there could be shipment of all freight. Such a terminal would not only cut down cost of freight, but would reduce unnecessary transportation with great saving on both ends, he explained.

In its program of community development, the Council is urging establishments of airports in all New England towns of size. Jewett further revealed. A four-day air tour of New England will take place in May, he said, which would show to New England men of big business just what New England consists of, financially, potentially and actually.

From 30 to 50 airplanes will participate with stop-overs in the principal New England centers.

SURVEY FACTORIES

Jewett told of a definite survey now under way which will catalog New England industrial plants into classes—those with up-to-date equipment, and those without.

The South End Women's Club, composed of residents of South End, voted a contribution of $25 to the New England Medical Center, which will be built in the community. Mrs. George W. T. Dowling, president, introduced the speaker.

DEFENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

Miss Ruth N. Clifford has been appointed secretary of the Welcome House Protective Department of the League, it is announced. She is a graduate of the University of Redlands, Cal., and has been engaged in psychiatric work for some time.

The Welcome House Protective committee includes Mrs. Robert Homans, chairman; Mrs. Charles E. Bacon, Mary E. Driscoll, Mrs. A. E. Grannis, Mrs. M. Lawrence Higgins, Mrs. John S. Parker and Mrs. Arthur Robbins.

MASS. DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

A two-day conference, the 36th State meeting of the association, opens tomorrow in the Hotel Statler at 10:15 a. m.

The proposed amendment to State rules to be acted upon is: "No member shall be eligible for State office until she has been a member of the National Society for at least two years. No member shall be eligible to the same State office for two successive terms, and no member who has served one term in any State office, except that of State-vice-regent, shall be eligible to any State office except that of State regent, until the expiration of at least one year."

Governor Allen will attend one of the sessions during the conference. The speaker is to be Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson of Dorchester.

Wednesday evening a reception will be held for national officers, State officers and guests at 6:30. Mrs. Stephen P. Hurd, State regent, will preside at all the sessions.

MIQUELLE IS SYMPHONY SOLOIST

By MOSES SMITH

THE fifth Monday evening concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Serge Koussevitsky, began with Arnold Schonberg's orchestration of the Bach Organ Prelude and Fugue in E-flat, which was played at the regular concerts about a month ago, and ended with "An Alpine Symphony" by Richard Strauss, taken from last week's subscription program. In between was the Mozart Piano Concerto in D minor, with Renee Longy Miquelle as soloist.

Schonberg's marvelous command of the orchestral medium was apparent with renewed force, just as there were those in the audience who questioned the propriety of redressing the child of Bach's muse. There is at least this justification—that many who are unlikely to hear the original organ version are thus made familiar with a great prelude and a magnificent fugue.

Hearing Strauss' lengthy tonepoem (as the symphony is) for the second time in three days, aroused in this writer no essentially new sensations or opinions We admired a bit more the Strauss of the mighty melodic line, the master of instrumentation in a quiet reflective mood. This just is the Strauss of "Der Rosenkavalier" during the princess' soliloquy or during the great trio at the end of the third act.

But we deplored anew the man's wilfulness, his lack of self-criticism, his lengthy discourse when a single sentence has already made his meaning plain. The mere length of the piece, which takes 50 minutes to play, does not frighten us, for many a scene in Wagnerian music-drama takes more time than that. But here much is mere discursiveness.

Mme. Miquelle was evidently nervous during the performance of the charming Mozart concerto, so that she probably did not do herself justice. The Romanza was played with refined sentiment, delicate touch. But the fast movements were often hurried. This was a pity, if only for sentimental reasons, for she has been long actively and prominently connected with Boston's musical life.

The orchestral performance was brilliant. The large audience applauded conductor and performers enthusiastically.

Cape is Coming Into Its Own as Jacket Battles to Maintain Hold on Fashion Field

CAPES and jackets are running neck and neck, no pun intended, for fashion honors this coming spring. From its stronghold of many seasons the jacket still holds a good measure of the fashion field, but with a new determination the cape is coming into its own.

The costume pictured has balance, harmony, and a world of chic.

It is of gray crepe, that newly smart color for spring and summer, the skirt is set on a yoke, deeply pointed in front, and fastening in back with a Crystal buckle. The skirt appears slim and straight, but has much fullness through an inverted pleat down center front, and wide box pleats across the back. These very new pleats are echoed on the cape. The cape is removable, and fastens to the dress by buttoning to large crystal buttons down the front. Collar and cuffs of fagotted white crepe add daintiness.

THE hat is of the new "Chauvre Souis" in a draped Beret as sponsored by Agnes and Alphensine; a feather fancy in light and dark tones is posed on the right side. The model carries the approved envelope bag of calfskin, a geometric design in black and white; plain black pumps; and white chamois gloves.

This costume may be worn on the street, or for afternoon affairs, and its detachable cape proves a boon to women who dislike appearing coatless on the street on warm days. Spring fashions and the cape theme are one—in line with the ultra feminine trend the cape is the most expressive note.

SHORT capes, epaulettes, gracefully pleated capes—the cape has received the most attention and is presented in a variety of most unusual treatments. Possibly its rise to a prominent place on the shoulders of the new fashions is to be explained by its certhin flair for individuality—a most important theme of spring clothes.

Whether to wear a bit of trimming on the new hat is a question that may have puzzled you after seasons of severely plain felt head coverings. But the touch of color that adorns many of the new hats seems to offer the needed compromise between the old plainness and the new adornment. Just a dash of color in a bit of ribbon, a pompom or perhaps varicolored ribbons is the badge of newness on smart hats.

DAILY ANTIQUE

This is one of the earliest china-headed dolls to appear in this country. The heads of these early dolls were made of an excellent grade of pottery, either in France or England. This one is probably from the Staffordshire potteries in England. The first American dolls had wooden bodies and wooden painted heads. Next came wooden bodies and papier mache heads. Next, about 1850, wooden bodies and china heads. Finally, china heads and stuffed bodies. The reason for the stuffed bodies was economy. Most thrifty families bought the china heads and constructed cloth stuffed bodies to go with them. This accounts for the uncouth figures of so many old dolls, so different from the elegant proportions of the lady who is today basking in the all-revealing light of publicity in the picture above.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of genuine antiques, particularly of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, provided the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the "Antique Editor, 3 Winthrop sq., Boston."

Anita Page tells how to be Fascinating

ANITA PAGE, the young Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star whose beauty has won millions of hearts, says: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps my skin so wonderfully smooth."

Anita Page

"FOR the girl who wants to be charming, one thing is essential," says Anita Page, the girl whose blonde loveliness has won her universal devotion on the screen. "It's smooth skin!

"No matter how lovely your figure—your eyes—your hair—you can't have that compelling something unless your skin is softly clear and glowing. And if it is, you're sure to be attractive!

"Screen stars, you know, have to keep their skin silky smooth and fine-textured every minute. Motion picture directors found out long ago that without lovely skin no girl can hope to win and hold the hearts of millions. The glaring close-up lights reveal even the tiniest flaws!

"Several years ago, some of us discovered just the care our skin needs to keep it always at its best—Lux Toilet Soap! Then more and more of the stars began to use it, until now almost every girl I know is devoted to this delightful soap.

CATHERINE DALE OWEN uses Lux Toilet Soap regularly.

"Catherine Dale Owen, for instance. Did you ever see smoother, lovelier skin? And Kay Johnson, too. They both use Lux Toilet Soap regularly.

"Regular care with Lux Toilet Soap—that's my prescription for lovely skin—and any girl can follow it!"

KAY JOHNSON, M.G.M., "Leaves my skin so smooth!"

9 out of 10 Lovely Stars use it—in Hollywood—on Broadway—in Europe

Of the 521 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, 511 use Lux Toilet Soap.

The Broadway stage stars are devoted to it, too. And now even the European stars have enthusiastically adopted it!

If you aren't caring for your skin with this fragrant white soap, do try it—today.

PLANE PRICES CUT TO NEW LOW LEVEL

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

While vigorous efforts are being made to check the price war started a couple of months ago, when Great Lakes and Stinson Aircraft reduced their prices, the battle among airplane manufacturers has spread so that used planes are selling for as low as $600 at Boston Airport.

Airplane prices have long been felt by the average buyer as being too high, and dealers are following the methods of the automobile industry until the struggle has resolved itself into a survival of the fittest.

Simultaneously with the announcement of East Coast Aircraft Corporation of their appointment as exclusive distributors in New England for the Curtiss-Wright group, comes a cut in prices by this combination, meeting the reductions already made by other independent companies.

At present there are a couple of two-place ships on the Boston Airport, one of which can be purchased for the above mentioned $600, and the other for $200 dollars more. These are used planes, but the new models they represent have been slashed $1,000 or more, and the reductions are being felt all around.

EASY TO CATCH PARROT FEVER, U. S. FINDS

Washington, March 18 (AP)—Eleven employes of the public health service are suffering from psittacosis, or parrot fever, and experiments aimed at discovering the cause and cure of this mysterious malady have been temporarily abandoned, together with the laboratory in which they were conducted.

But the experiments already have been partially successful, and to their own efforts the patients owe a process of treatment which is being applied with apparent success. Many of them are recovering.

They are inoculated with a serum composed partially of blood taken from other victims of the disease. In addition, they have isolated the virus, an important accomplishment. However, Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming says that much remains to be learned.

Little is known as yet of how the disease is communicated. At first it was thought that infection was impossible except by direct contact with affected parrots.

But it has now been proved, the surgeon general says, that the malady is extremely contagious. Three doctors, now ill, had no connection with the psittacosis laboratory.

"THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER" MELODIES RING FROM MAJESTIC STAGE

OLD STRAUS OPERETTA PLEASES

The Cast

Nadina Popoff ..... Alice MacKenzie
Aurelia Popoff ..... Vera Rose
Mascha ..... Alice Wellman
Lieut. Bumerli ..... Charles Purcell
Capt. Massakroff..William G. Gordon

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

EXACTLY why the Oscar Straus compositions which make up "The Chocolate Soldier" should be included in the much stressed Victor Herbert Festival at the Majestic is not clear. Quite incidentally we had De Koven's "Robin Hood" and Lehar's "The Merry Widow" to prove that Victor Herbert was America's most adept dabbler in melodies for the masses. Having tested Victor Herbert, and discovered good profit in the experiment, there is no reason for scolding the Messrs. Shubert for having a fair eye to sweet waters and picking off an honest dollar by a little off-side speculation.

BY theatrical manipulations the local playgoer comes face to face with "The Chocolate Soldier," the last of the Victor Herbert Festival ceremonies. With out a blush we could honestly say that it makes good entertainment regardless of its general classification. In shorter words "The Chocolate Soldier," as it sang and danced its way through three acts at the Majestic last night, may be registered in the season's scroll as just another of the revivals that had its moments and made the most of all of them. Melody and story have done their best for "The Chocolate Soldier." Scenic embellishment is not important. Possibly that is why the Messrs. Shubert, at last, have bestowed upon a favorite revival the benefit of good vnice and left the painted scenery to its own dull resources. Certainly the voices spoke for themselves last night.

AS an entertainment in song, dance and what we all like to regard as the best of continental expression in muse and music, "The Chocolate Soldier" fills every requirement. This is no new estimate of the piece; rather it is the heralding of an old hero brought suddenly into renewed youth. As things rolled along at the Majestic, Charles Purcell, pampered and featured, played the "chocolate soldier" with sustained spirit. He proved himself a musical comedy flirt of great relish.

IN the meantime, "The Chocolate Soldier" amply stressed its delicious melodies—its stirring ensembles. If Mr. Purcell was its hero, which the book described, there still were people to be taken in full account. Of these, Alice Mackenzie, John Dunsmore and Vera Rose either sang or acted in the manner demanded by musical comedy ethics. Miss Mackenzie especially, mixed romance with high notes and made no faltering gestures.

KENNETH WICKSTEED

QUINCE is the role of Mr. Wickesteed in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be given at the Hollis next week by the Stratford-Upon-Avon Festival Company. Shakespearean plays will be the company's lot during the Boston engagement.

CABARET BILL FULL OF FUN

A COMBINATION vaudeville program and burlesque show made up the special Monday night program at the Gayety. It was known as "Professional Night" and five snappy vaudeville acts were added to "Get Hot," the burlesque show. Thursday night will again be "Cabaret Night," when more vaudeville will be included.

Al Hiller, aided by Joe Forte, his comedy-feeder, stopped the show several times. Artie Brooks, a comedian of the eccentric type, was another who contributed much to the steady laughter.

Alice Duval, Gladys McCormick and Aline Rogers, together with May Maiben, made up an unusually attractive quartet. They all had specialties.

Joey Montague, juvenile, proved himself a dancer of no mean ability. Holub's Gayety jazz orchestra had a busy session, for it produced some new specialties and some genuine novelties.

BIG HAND FOR RING GENT

ONE of its biggest shows was offered yesterday at the Old Howard. On the vaudeville bill, James J. Corbett, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, made a personal appearance in a sketch bit in which he was well supported by Neil O'Brien, the famous minstrel. Both were given a big reception.

The burlesque card was presented by the Jazztime Revue Company, headed by Kitty Madison, Jack Hunt, as the chief funmaker, demonstrated his ability to please. One of the outstanding features was the appearance of Josie Rinaldi, the favored dancing star of the "Hot Chocolates" company.

In the continuous part of the bill, Relli and LaPelle offered a clever acrobatic act, and Art Spaulding had song hits. Norma Talmadge was seen on screen in "The Woman Disputed." Another hit was "The Unholy Night."

There will be a midnight show on Friday night, beginning at 11:30.

SURE FIRE HIT AT CASINO

THERE is a laugh a minute at Waldron's, when the entire company of "Laffin' Thru" puts over a rapid succession of farces, skits and individual offerings. Teresina, featured feminine performer, proves herself an engaging dancer.

Joe Yon, a wise-cracking comedian of the eccentric type, furnishes much comedy in his own odd way. Les Dunn, Jack Baird, Arthur Gilson, Don Proctor, Vinnie Phillips, Arthena Comley and Anna Foley were among the other stars who kept up the fast tempo set by the featured performers. Each offers a specialty.

In addition to the burlesque there are two all-talking feature photoplays, making the show continuous from 12:30 to 10:30, and Dick Crosby's orchestra contributes some features, too, for a well-balanced bill.

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"THE Rogue Song" gives to the throated camera the finest singing voice we have yet heard in the accompaniment of motion picture. If Lawrence Tibbett has had his ovations in grand opera, he is not to ignore as of lesser importance the spontaneous applause that came several times while we were viewing his first screen performance at Loew's State. His voice is magnificent. We accord him a further need—his vocal cords in all his dialogue register a masculinity that is most pleasurable. If voice alone makes a man a matinee idol in fandom, then Mr. Tibbett will have no worries about his future whatsoever.

THE operetta is done entirely in technicolor, in shades that are easiest upon the eyes. Though Mr. Tibbett does all the singing except in two or three choruses, the picture loses nothing; his is a voice that is charming in every mood. He scores with his every song. His only lack is in the matter of looks; that is nothing to us, but it may be to many patrons of the movies. There is one angle from which he pictures superbly; perhaps future direction for him will catch that trick and play it up. But his personality is very pleasing, his manner is easy and he is as vigorous and virile as heart could wish. It is our fervent hope that the talkies will make him their own, chiefly because of that golden treasure he has in his throat.

ONE might call this a musical drama rather than an operetta. It is good music; the name of Franz Lehar means that much. One guess is that you will like the choruses and all of Mr. Tibbett's solos. The story is not only interesting, but picturesque; it is laid in a wild district of Russia, which, of course, lends colorful costuming. It breathes deeply of adventure and romance. It is out of the ordinary in some respects; there are primitive impulses and motivations here. There is no saint by any means. Nor does the end bow to the conventional; that is one unusual asset.

MOTION picture values are given a sweep that Technicolor does not often see. These sequences, silent as to dialogue, but eloquent with the sounds of nature, with the clop-clop of horses, with the life of galloping steeds and the grandeur of the wide-open spaces, give us a joy that is profound. The storm sequence is stirring, wholly satisfying. Here are real motion picture action, speed and life. The direction is able, the title pages forward grandly, snappily. The imagination is forced into play; somehow the director makes us feel these faraway folk are real living being. In less skilled hands the operetta could easily have been merely fanciful, or, at the worst, fantastic.

FROM the box office standpoint, there is bright sunshine in the low comedy work of Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. The audience—and it was one that took every seat, with scores standing—was at times in convulsive laughter; the picture has a liberal showing of the famed comic pair and their antics. We confess we like them immensely and enjoyed them in this offering. Catherine Dale Owen lends merely a blonde beauty to the film; she is kept in the background. Wallace MacDonald is very good; Nance O'Neil, fine. "The Rogue Song" makes two stellar ones in a row for the State; last week it was "Anna Christie". ## Screen Shorts

With three releases this month, Christie completes its 1929-30 season. Bert Roach and Johnny Arthur in "Down With Husbands," Carmel Myers and Bert Roach in "The Stronger Sex," and Charlie Murray in "His Honor the Mayor" are the three March releases.

In "A Very Practical Joke," Milton Sills plays the first character role since his recent illness. Berthold Viertel is directing.

Adaptation of "The Last of the Lone Wolf" for Columbia is being made by Luther Reed.

William Wellman has returned to the Paramount studios, following a visit to New York, where he directed Charles Rogers in "Young Eagles."

Lelia Hyams has been cast for the chief feminine role in M-G-M's "The Big House," now in production under the direction of George Hill.

Lewis Stone will have a featured role in "Romance," Greta Garbo's next picture for M-G-M.

LANGDON GETS RETURN TO 'BIG TIME'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, March 18—The gods that have overlooked Little Doughface Harry Langdon are smiling again. Harry is returning to the big time movies. Since his disastrous exit from First National, he has been contenting himself with non-important shorts and biding his time. Maybe he has reformed. I used to hear that he was a lad who wanted his own way in motion picture production. At any rate, Harry is now the featured player in Vina Delmar's "Come Easy," which will co-star Lotti Loder and Ben Lyon, Hollywood's most sought-after male juvenile. Lotti, the Warner Brothers' Hungarian discovery, is riding right along as she should, for if ever a gal has put herself to the job of making good it is the little Hungarian beauty. Michael Curtiz, also Hungarian, will be able to discipline Lotti in her own language should she need it.

JOBS that were pathetically scarce for Lew Cody during the sad days when he was trying to regain his health are coming back now stronger than ever. He has just been signed to play opposite Gloria Swanson in "What a Widow," which was the role originally given Ian Keith, whose chosen part was signed over a month ago for an important part in Swanson's next talkie. While the public has to be denied the pleasure of seeing Mr. Keith in this talkie, his unseen presence will register. He is to help Allan Dwan direct.

I'LL admit I am disappointed. I had hoped that Ina Claire would be given the role that Hope Williams created on the stage in "Holiday." In fact, Pathe had decided to postpone "Lazy Lady" and let Mrs. John Gilbert do her smart comedy stuff in "Holiday." But something has happened, and now the play is handed to Ann Harding. I hope this doesn't sound as if Miss Harding were in any way unsuited to any part given her. In fact, she has made one of the biggest hits in the talkies of any actress who has left the stage for Hollywood. But I just feel that the blue-eyed demure little Ann is more the heroine type, if you know what I mean. She's a gentle, kind girl, who is not ultra in her moods, but who although sophisticated, remains untouched by it.

CONRAD AND NORMA

WHERE do you think Conrad Nagel will be located the next few weeks? On the United Artists lot where he will be emoting opposite Norma Talmadge in "Du Barry." Gilbert Roland, who formerly played opposite Norma has been signed for the leading role in "Monsieur le Fox," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture as we announced yesterday. It is really not going out of the family so much with Nicholas Schenck, one of the bosses of M-G-M, and Joseph Schenck, the boss of U. A.

Conrad Nagel, it seems to me, travels a path to the various studios more than any other actor. Looks as if he gets more leading men roles than anybody in Hollywood.

NOW the truth comes out. Elsie Ferguson's first picture with Warner Brothers is "Scarlet Pages," based on Samuel Shipman's play. Elsie, the gracious lady who long ago bade good-bye to the movies for the stage, will not have to stand alone in the Warner exchange-ment. She will have such excellent company as John Halliday, Marion Nixon and Grant Withers. Young Withers, with his latest matrimonial adventure smoothed out, is sailing along at an enviable rate. He seems to have that certain thing that we heard sung about in "Fifty Million Frenchmen." To be more explicit, the gals like him.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Greta Garbo giving the Roosevelt Hotel boarders a treat by dining there and later sitting in the lobby. Laura Hope Crews, suffering from gall stones, rushed to the hospital. Gloria Swanson taking a day off to do some spring shopping at a local Los Angeles shop. Nancy Carroll, James Kirkwood and others dining at The Brown Derby. "Skeets" Gallagher and Jack Oakie putting on an impromptu act at the Paramount commissary. Many of the Hollywood film kiddies helping Marilyn Hoffman to celebrate her third birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen Goetz and others arriving from New York to attend the Mayer-Goetz wedding. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Merry Monk

WALTER HAMPDEN

CANON CAPONSACCHI is shown in carnival attire in a scene from "Caponsacchi," coming to the Wilbur, March 24.

NETOCO GETS "MAMBA"

THE first all-technicolor drama to reach the talking screen, "Mamba" will be shown at the Netoco Modern, Beacon and Egyptian soon. There have been many all-technicolor productions, but they have all been musical comedy or light operetta. "Mamba" is a star drama, with no hint of musical comedy or operetta, and has as its locale East Africa. The story concerns itself with a cruel husband, a purchased bride and a soldier lover, these three principal characters being portrayed by Jean Hersholt, Eleanor Boardman and Ralph Forbes.

VAN, SCHENCK FILM CLICKS AT ORPHEUM

The Cast

Jack ..... Joe Schenck
Jerry ..... Gus Van
Mary ..... Bessie Love
Daisy ..... Mary Doran
Stafford ..... J. C. Nugent
Tom ..... Bessie Rabe
Tim ..... Tom Dugan
Brennan ..... Eddie Gribbon
Hankins .... Francis X. Bushman, Jr.

WITH ten new song hits, Van and Schenck make a tunefully triumphant debut as motion picture stars in "They Learned About Women," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new musical talking feature, which is having its first Boston presentation at Loew's Orpheum this week.

The famous singing stars bring a bit of the life they have known as vaudeville performers and baseball players into the picture, enacting the role of ball swatters who drift onto the stage to fill in the gap between seasons on the diamond. There ought to be enough entertainment in this picture for everybody, so varied and pleasing is it. The comedy antics of the cast and the witty dialogue of "Bugs" Baer, noted humorist, are an important asset.

Bessie Love plays opposite the singing stars and gives a splendid portrayal of the girl loved by these clumsy pals. Others in the cast include Mary Doran, Benny Rubin, Tommy Dugan, Eddie Gribbon, J. C. Nugent and Francis X. Bushman, Jr.

For stage diversion there is Ben Barton, clever young master of ceremonies, who presents his Californian revue in true headline fashion. Assisting him are 15 entertainers, who offer singing, dancing, comedy and musical specialties. Lee Gellis, in amusing acrobatic dances, is warmly applauded and, likewise, Jerry Smith and Mary Hart in a smart comedy act. Lomax and Johnson in a song presentation and Manning and Klass performing on a tight wire are other vaudeville hits.

PRODUCER IS REAL IDOL OF THE CHORUS

ONLY the aristocrats of the musical production world have ever carried on their programs or advertising matter the credit line reading: "Musical Numbers Staged by Bobby Connolly." Among these are the four most recent Schwab and Mandel successes, "The New Moon," now at the Shubert, "The Desert Song," "Good News" and "Follow Thru." It is doubtful, however, if 'Musical Numbers Staged by Bobby Connolly" will ever appear on another program, as the aforesaid Bobby has become a producer on his own account.

But Connolly, who owes to Schwab and Mandel his rise to popularity as a master craftsman in the art of staging musical and dancing numbers, has promised these producers that he would be at their service whenever they were putting on another musical show.

Connolly is the idol of every show and chorus girl in New York. He is a hard task master, but he is quick to discover talent and ambition, and he has helped many a girl along the path to success. Four weeks of rehearsal under Connolly is worth more than an entire course of dancing in a school, and he can accomplish marvels with any group of girls with average intelligence, who are not lame or deformed. He treats the girls like young sisters and he knows every Broadway showgirl by her first, middle or nickname. He even knows the real names of some.

Brahms Festival

The magnitude and importance of the Brahms Festival to be given in Symphony Hall, March 21-26, is unprecedented when compared with past performances of Brahms in this city. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Serge Koussevitzky, will present the four symphonies; the Academic Festival Overture and the Haydn Variations. Artur Schnabel will appear with the orchestra in the two Pianoforte Concertos and give a group of pieces for piano solo and appear with the Burgin String Quartet in the Quintet in F minor.

Something to Think About

Editor Boston American:

The New England Superintendent's Association recently passed this resolution which I hope is generally endorsed by all New England during the Tercentenary.

Resolved, "That the New England Association of School Superintendents recommend that the schools of New England observe the tercentenary of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony by appropriate instruction and exercises."

Nothing is more important than making the mind of the young child understand what was endured by the early settlers of this part of the country. There is much to be forgotten in their treatment of the Indians, but there is much to be gleaned from the Colonists that should be studied and appreciated. It is more important that we should know the early history of this country than that of Greece or Rome. Let us boom America this year.

GLENN H. TILTON.

Capone's Millions and His Philosophy

Editor Boston American:

"Scarface" Al Capone is now back in Chicago, after serving a sentence in Philadelphia. He is one of the most interesting characters in America today. Just think that in 1928, thirty millions of dollars was spent in protection alone and it is claimed that the gross receipts to the gangs was well over one hundred and fifty millions, dollars.

His defense of himself and plans is worth considering. He says:

"Prohibition is my business. All I can do is to meet the demand. I do it in the best and least harmful way I can. My customers include some of the finest people in the city. But I am just a bootlegger, I violate the prohibition law, and so do they."

If this is not the backbone of much common sense and if this does not show some of the flaws in prohibition and why people want it repealed, then I am losing my comprehension of human nature. It seems that prohibition creates more evil than it remedies.

CHARLES L. SPRINGER.

Rousing Welcome Suggested for Byrd

Editor Boston American:

Richard Evelyn Byrd, now a real admiral in the U. S. Navy, whom we expect to see in Boston soon will be given a royal welcome here and it strikes me that we Bostonians ought to make it one of the features of the Tercentenary. Byrd is now 45, the youngest naval officer with the rank of rear admiral.

Let us give him a roaring welcome in Boston. Let us prepare for it now. We did this for Dewey, named a square after him. Let Boston name one after Byrd.

JAMES H. HARRINGTON.

Says Many in Boston Believe Earth Flat

Editor Boston American:

I was pleased with what Mr. Turnbull said in your letter column. He's right. There are many persons taught in Boston to believe that the earth is flat. We have Flat Earthians galore in Boston. A student at Gordon College told me that many of the students there believe that the earth is flat. Then, on the other hand, over in the Divinity School of Harvard University you can't find one that assumes that the earth is flat. JOHN ROACH.

Jews Seek to Hold Racial Integrity

Editor Boston American:

That speaker at the Ford Hall Forum surely understands very little about the American Jew. Rabbi Wise has devoted much time to modernizing Israel, not burdening this race with any revolutionary ideas but aiming to make his ideas practical, a vital part of the life of the American Jew.

The Jew is not to lose his identity in the melting pot of America. The Jewish people are to live in the United States, assimilating its ideals and standards, but at the same time remaining intensely loyal to things Jewish. Any other interpretation falls short of the truth.

N. LIEBSTEIN

Ontario Profits From Liquor Sales

Editor Boston American:

The citizens of the United States are the laughing stock of other countries. Ontario, which was dry for a good many years, is an example to the tax-payers of America, who are being taxed because of prohibition.

What has the Anti-Saloon League got to say concerning Ontario liquor sales of $55,360,359 in 1929, netting the government $9,661,468. This figure shows what the United States is losing.

When the prohibition law was placed upon the statute books the people had no say. The legislative bodies throughout the United States foisted it upon the people, without their consent.

COLEMAN E. KELLY.

More Reserve in Sex Discussions Urged

Editor Boston American:

May I register a complaint against certain physicians who are going around speaking at Sunday evening forums on sexology. They should show more dignified reserve in expressing facts about one's half. I still think that women physicians are the best agents of information on this particular subject for young women, and men physicians can handle the young men.

There is a certain well known physician who really has a "bug," so to speak, on the matter of sexology, and does not present it in the right way before young minds. Many agree with me on this. This is the reason for writing this letter. A MOTHER.

KIDNAPED MAN BEATEN UP BY ABDUCTORS

Asbury Park, N. J., March 18 (AP)—Samuel Barron, New York steel estate operator, was recovering from injuries suffered at the hands of his abductors today while authorities strove to solve the mystery of his kidnaping and four-day detention.

John J. Quinn, Monmouth County prosecutor, said he had definite clues to suspects in the slugging and kidnaping of Barron near his home in Interlaken, N. J., Wednesday night.

Barron returned to his home showing evidence of having been severely beaten. He said he had been kept bound and blindfolded in a barn-like place by three men. One of them questioned him regarding money, he said, but after one conversation there had been no further reference to ransom.

Quinn said there were certain indications the kidnaping was the result of a grudge rather than an attempt to extort money. He referred to it as an "inside job."

Herman Goodstein, Barron's partner in the Ehrean Real Estate Corporation, is at liberty under $15,000 bail as a material witness. He was arrested on orders from Quinn, who said Goodstein was holding back information concerning threats which had been made against Barron.

10 BILLIONS TO BE SPENT ON RAILROADS

New York, March 18 (INS)—A development and expansion program that will revolutionize American transportation has been instituted, and $1,000,000,000 will be spent this year to advance it, Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, says in an interview which will appear in the American Magazine.

"The practice of treating automobiles, ships, aircraft and railroads as separate agencies is wasteful," Gen. Atterbury says. He regards co-ordination as the key to the railroad problem.

Gen. Atterbury estimates the running time between Chicago and New York will be reduced from 20 hours to 14 within a few years.

"We have already spent $6,000,000,000, yet what has been done is only a beginning. Between $8,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000 will be spent in the next 10 years," Gen. Atterbury said.

"Future trains," he continues, "will be as luxurious as hotels, and passengers will be able to take their automobiles with them as if they were baggage. Radiophones will keep travelers in touch with their offices and homes.

TRAIN IS BLOWN UP; 3 DEAD

Evansville, Ind., March 18 (AP)—Three men were killed and at least one other man was seriously injured early today when a freight train on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad was wrecked at Kinney station.

The cause of the wreck, it was said at the company's offices here, was a boiler explosion on the engine that threw the freight train from the rails and set fire to the cars.

There was nothing left of the train except charred piles of twisted steel.

The series of explosions and the fire that followed demolished every car.

There were several tank cars of gasoline in the train and at least one of these near the engine blew up, scattering wreckage for some distance around the right of way.

Hoover Is Going to Camp, But Law Bars Fishing

Washington, March 18 (INS)—President Hoover is looking forward to a resumption of his famous weekends on the Rapidan river.

Ten days hence, Mr. Hoover plans to make his first trip of the season to the mountain camp he had built last summer.

Because the trout season does not open until April 1, the President will have to forego any fishing on his first trip.

Hindenburg Signs Liquidation Pacts

Berlin, March 18 (AP)—President Von Hindenburg today signed the series of liquidation agreements approved by the Reichstag last week with the Young plan bill and the German-American agreement.

BERENGER SEES WAR PERIL

Paris, March 18 (AP)—Warning that the world of today faces the same risk of war as preceding epochs, was issued today by Senator Henry Berenger, former ambassador to Washington, in a report to the French Parliament.

Berenger said the crisis was found in the fact that democracies, while wishing peace, feared war and though wishing to disarm, they remained armed. In conclusion he said:

"Neither on the sea, where several imperialisms are opposed to one another, nor on land where Central and Oriental Europe are far from consolidated, does the situation justify lazy optimism. With its double determination oftimes affirmed of peace and domination, our age contains as many murderous risks as those which have gone before."

WILL COMPLETE VATICAN R. R.

Rome, March 18 (AP)—The Council of Ministers, with Premier Mussolini presiding, today approved a measure asking Parliament to grant an additional 850,000 for completion of the railway from Vatican City and for other public works by virtue of the Lateran treaties.

The railway is a private road by which entrance can be gained into the newly constituted Vatican City State.

Among other bills approved was one provided for a just return to tenants of farm land for improvements directed during their occupancy.

Fewer 'Sore Throats' Are Reported in Ayer

Ayer, March 18—Reaching a total of 102 cases, the "sore throat" epidemic caused by infected milk today began to lessen under prompt measures by the health department.

The board ordered the milk producer to pasteurize his milk in the future and he complied. The result is that the cases are decreasing.

Although not related to the milk cases, there are also about 75 cases of measles in Ayer this week.

Bluenose Captain Accepts Challenge

Lunenburg, N. S., March 18 (AP)—A race between the new Gloucester fishing schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud and the Nova Scotian Bluenose, champion of the international fishing fleet, seemed assured today.

Capt. Angus Walters of the Bluenose said he would accept the challenge of the Gloucester entry providing the contest were held off Nova Scotia and the necessary money raised. If held, the race probably will take place late this summer.

Daring Story of Eternal Love Triangle

Ardeth Carroll, beauty, lives in the drab home of her Aunt Stella. Neil Burke, downstairs, claims Ardeth as his. She is uncertain. She yearns for a fuller life. She quarrels with her cousin, Bet, whose room she shares. Ardeth sees the man of her dreams, Ken Gleason. Neil is furiously jealous. Jeannette Parker, society girl, plans to use Ardeth in a scheme for revenge. She opens a shop and engages Ardeth to run it. Ardeth sees that she can never marry Neil. Ken comes to the shop and meets Ardeth. Both are secretly impressed.

CHAPTER 10

ACROSS the bay from San Francisco the Alameda coastline stretches itself to the south in a vast salt marsh. An empty, fascinating country, brooding under eternal silence. The only habitations are lonely little wooden shacks stuck up on stilts in the mud, used for duck shooting parties or small wooden arks anchored on the edges of the innumerable sloughs which cut the flats into a gray picture puzzle.

Half hidden in the saw-grass on the edge of one such slough was the houseboat which Ken and Tom Corbett called their "duck shack." Most of the time it lay bleaching alone in the sunny stillness—so deserted that gulls and coots and even the wild ducks had come to regard it as part of the landscape.

But today the bird life had fled in panic. The mud hens had waded away in scandalized agitation and seagulls had a knowing air as they circled its roof. The warped little ark had been invaded by a tall laughing fellow and a slim girl in a sport dress.

A golden day on the marshes. A day underlaid with a thrilling sense of drama.

"Glad you came, Moth?"

Her look was his answer.

When Ken had told of Jeanette's absence, desolation unbearable had swept Ardeth. She was like a disappointed child. Her lovely day—her beautiful day—snatched away at the last minute!

Then came angry rebellion. She'd go with Ken anyway! Suppose there were but the two of them? People weren't prudish about such things any more! She would go—she would!

They were defiantly gay coming over on the ferry boat, thrilling to a daring sense of revolt.

Blue bay—blue sky—and the sun gleaming on the man's uncovered head. There was a little crease in his thick hair where the hat brim had pressed a mark which would just span her finger, thought the girl dreamily. Then she had given a little startled laugh at the thought and would not tell him why she laughed.

This golden day dropped into her lap, far removed from the other gray days of the week. Nothing mattered—Aunt Stella nagging—Neil's jealousy—Cecile Parker—not even tomorrow which would put the window looking over miles of marsh. The warped floor boards of the sun-flooded deck and the soft lapping of water as the tide seeped up the slough.

She tied a huge flour sack dishtowel under her armpits and helped Ken prepare lunch on the rusty wood stove. From the back of the car, Ken produced a thick beefsteak, a jar of potato salad, French bread, butter, cheese. A bag of French pastry had been badly jammed in the trip over and sent them into gales of laughter.

It was easy to laugh today. Just the sight of Ken with a dishtowel tied about his neck, solemnly tossing whipped cream from his fingertips was sufficient to move the girl to tender ridicule.

Just the sight of a sooty smudge streaking Ardeth's nose was enough to start Ken's shout ringing over the marshes.

They were throbbingly aware of each other's presence. Aware of the empty piles which closed them here together. They combatted their secret excitement with an almost gayety.

They burned their fingers and broke plates. They dropped forks and dived for them at the same moment so their heads came smartly together. They salted the salad too much and entirely forgot to season the steak.

Ardeth cut her finger and Ken

House Near Censor Bill Compromise

FEDERAL LAW IS FAVORED IN PARLEY

New York Law Also Approved as a Substitute for the Shattuck Measure

Indications of a compromise between opposing factions were manifest on the Hill today as the House met to take up the Shattuck amendment to the improper literature law.

The parley gave considerable promise of an agreement to enact the Federal and New York State law in substitution for the Shattuck proposal. Under the Federal and New York laws, it was pointed out, the consideration of a book as a whole is optional with the jury, while the jury under the Shattuck bill would be compelled to base its decision on the whole text of the book.

Representatives Maynard E. R. Clemons of Wakefield and Martin Hays of Brighton, leaders of the opposition to the Shattuck amendment, early conferred with Speaker Saltonstall. This conference was to be followed by another with Representative Shattuck.

The New York and Federal laws, it was learned, is agreeable to the Watch and Ward Society.

In the remote possibility of a disagreement between the factions, a stiff battle over the Shattuck bill, which has already passed the Senate, was imminent. Party lines have been swept aside.

FISH BOATS ARE SAFE; IN HARD FIGHT

Two Towed to Boston, One to Gloucester; All Crippled in Heavy Storm

Three disabled vessels were safe in Boston and Gloucester today after a fight with the elements on the fishing grounds.

The schooner Ruth and Margaret tied up at Boston fish pier; the Evelyn Sears reached Gloucester and the Isabel came into port here.

The Ruth and Margaret met trouble Saturday night when her engine quit in the teeth of a ful gale on Georges Bank. The coast guard cutter Jouett rushed to the rescue and brought the fishermen here today.

The schooner Isabel was brought by the patrol boat Frederick Lee to the outer harbor, where the steam trawler William J. O'Brien took the Isabel in tow.

The Evelyn Sears reached Gloucester in tow of the fishing schooner Doris Amiro, Capt. Nero Amiro.

FLAGS AT PEAK CALLED ERROR

Confusion reigned as to precedence of Evacuation Day over President Hoover's proclamation of mourning for Ex-President Taft when the flag on Boston Common and the banners atop several mercantile establishments were raised to the peak

The reason given was that it was believed that the observance of Evacuation Day took precedence over the mourning proclamation. Inquiry at the secretary of state's office, however, disclosed that Secretary Cook had also issued a proclamation which stated that the half-mast decree should take precedence over everything else for the 30-day period

POLICE PROBE ATTACK STORY

State police today started an investigation in Wakefield as a result of an incident last Friday in which a taxicab driver and a Wakefield girl were the principals.

According to officials, the girl agreed to an invitation of the taxi driver to take her home. Instead of going home the driver is alleged to have taken the girl to a coal yard. She arrived home in an hysterical condition, with her clothing badly torn.

Challenger for Fisherman's Cup Is Launched at Essex Shipyard

Elizabeth Hovey of Brookline, widely known girl skipper, who christened the Gertrude L. Thebaud, challenger for the fisherman's cup, as the craft slid gracefully into the water at the Essex shipyard. (Staff photos.)

RACE SCHOONER LAUNCHED

Miss Elizabeth Hovey of Brookline, who has a reputation of her own in yachting circles, broke a bottle of 35-year-old champagne across the schooner's bows, her owners and builders being unwilling to tempt the fates by sending her to sea with a splash of Volstead brew over her stem

Paine, who drew up the plans for the cup defender Yankee, all the skill and knowledge of a lifetime has gone into her building She is in no sense a yacht, but a vessel built for the business of fishing. The new schooner will carry a crew of 27 men and her hold will accommodate 175,000 pounds of fish

Louis A. Thebaud of Morristown, N. J., a summer resident of Gloucester, provided $10000 of the $75,000 required to build her, and the vessel bears the name of Mrs. Thebaud. Just before she took the water a telegram from Mr. and Mrs. Thebaud in New York brought wishes for the best of luck

"It is our purpose to revive and renew in the hearts and minds of the radio public the noble ideals upon which this nation was founded," Dean Archer explained in his broadcast.

"All the radio stations in Massachusetts are most generously cooperating in this highly patriotic service. In addition, we have already arranged two series of national broadcasts."

STRIKING CLOAK WORKERS ARE BACK ON JOB

Less Than 500 Without Work Will Picket Shops Not Signed by Union

Nearly 2500 striking cloak and dressmakers of this city are back at work, today, leaving less than 500 of the original 3000 that responded to the general strike order Thursday now out.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union of the A. F of L. opened a headquarters at the Hotel Avery and contracts are being signed with individual employers on the basis of the union settlements with the organized cloak and dress manufacturers' associations for a five-day week of 40 hours abolition of the sweatshops, creation of an impartial chairman and arbitration board and confinement of all outside production to union contracting shops.

These employers are obliged to post a security as a guarantee of good faith with the union.

David Dubinsky, general secretary of the I. L. G. W. U., declared that an intensive campaign will be waged against a dozen shops that have refused thus far to enter in to negotiation with the organization. These shops will be picketed, in the majority of instances, by operatives who quit since the general strike was called.

BROWN THINKS GRANITE P. O. ASSURED

Same Site to Be Used, Says Postmaster-General; Won't Urge Quincy Quarries

Granite will in all probability be used in the construction of the new postoffice, said Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, but whether it will be Quincy granite or not he could not say.

The postmaster general stated that he did not feel free to recommend Quincy granite as the low bidder would get the contract and he did not wish to restrict the field

Officials in Washington have decided definitely that the new Federal building will be erected on the site of the old one, and it is hoped to begin work this spring, he said.

The postmaster made a flying visit here to look the site over.

SURE OF FUNDS

He is confident that Congress will speedily enact the legislation calling for an additional appropriation of $750,000 that granite may be used

"We like to help local industry as much as possible," declared Brown, "and we would like to help the workmen of this district, but even though the Treasury Department would consider seriously any recommendations I might make I do not think I care to go so far as to recommend the use of Quincy granite. If such eventually is used well and good.

"Ordinarily in the construction of new postoffices we are building them adjacent to railroad stations in the principal cities. It facilitates the handling of all types of mail

"In Boston, however, you have a unique situation. Your postoffice is located adjacent to neither railroad station, and the new one will be in the same plight. This was a point of considerable debate for a time, but we finally decided that the new federal building should be erected on the site of the old one"

FETE STAMPS

Touching upon the tercentenary stamp, Postmaster General Brown declared that 25,000,000 stamps of the special issue will be struck off and distributed to postoffices in Massachusetts Bay alone on April 19. They will be given general distribution the following day, he said.

If more than 25,000,000 stamps are needed, he said, they will be struck off, as the plates will be saved. He pointed out that it became necessary to run off 175,000,000 of the special Edison stamps.

GOODWIN FINDS CHILDREN NEEDLESSLY PLACED IN PORTABLES

SCHOOL PLAN BLAMED FOR SITUATION

Pupils Forced Out of Buildings for the Installation of New Equipment

The enforced use of portable buildings by Boston school children to make way for the installation of mechanical equipment in the school buildings proper, came to the attention of Finance Commission Chairman Frank A. Goodwin today in his personal investigation of alleged extravagance in the distribution of school funds.

Charges of "extravagant waste" were embodied in the last report of the defunct schoolhouse commission, which specified an outlay of $2,525,364 for mechanical equipment in schoolrooms, installation of which is declared to have forced children into the portable structures.

Asked about specific instances in which school money had been "wastefully" spent, Francis E. Slattery, former chairman of the old board, declined to catalogue the buildings under fire.

"I do not personally know what line of investigation Mr. Goodwin is at present following, but he has a free hand to conduct his probe on the basis of our report," said Slattery.

Why You Should Never Cut a Corn

If you are troubled with corns or calluses, don't be the victim of bad treatment by paring them. Statistics show that 65 cases out of 100 are accidents from the ugly, unsanitary practice of paring corns.

Don't go to your druggist and get a few cents worth of ice. Don't rub it on any painful corn or callous. Instead, put the ice in a handkerchief or a towel and lay the corn or callous on it. Then, and not until then, will the corn root pain all leaving the surrounding skin in a healthy normal condition.

This, together with the fact that Blue-jay corns never reach any trouble, such as infection, explains why paring first and foremost is condemned as responsible for the misery and woe of so many druggists.

To relieve the pain of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, simply cover it with a protective pad. You will realize at once the height of foolishness to pare a corn and spread germs on the toe.

Blue-jay is made by Bauer & Black, Chicago, makers of surgical dressings.

PISTOL THEFTS ALARMING

Alarmed by the loss of service pistols through thefts, Coast Guard headquarters at Washington issued a warning today to all divisions including the Eastern division covering New England.

In the period from January, 1928, to the present, 122 pistols have disappeared, the notice said.

A checkup showed that only one has been missed from this division during that period, that one being missed two months ago from a cutter.

"The loss of pistols, particularly by theft, is giving headquarters grave concern," the notice read.

"Such losses are on the increase. Not only does this condition cause a loss to the government but as a rule, places the pistols in the hands of the criminal class.

"In the future, headquarters will hold to strict accountability, the person responsible for the loss on in whose custody the pistol was placed."

FRAME HOLDS CAR ON BRIDGE

George W. Harding, of 7 East Denver st., Saugus, operator of an automobile truck, received only a cut on his right thumb when the machine skidded on wet car rails on Alford st., Charlestown, near the draw of the Mystic bridge, crashed through the railing and hung half way over the Mystic river.

Harding clambered to the sidewalk without causing the truck to fall into the river. The front wheels hung over the edge of the sidewalk above the water, held from toppling into the river by the framework of the chassis.

The accident occurred while Harding was driving toward Sullivan sq., Charlestown. About 500 yards on the Boston side of the drawbridge, the wheels skidded on the rails and he lost control. The truck swerved to the right and ran along the sidewalk, tearing away 40 feet of the fence before it stopped.

Harding refused medical assistance.

A new art collection will come to the William Hayes Fogg Museum of Art at Harvard, provided there can be found in the museum or constructed there three rooms approximately the same size as those now housing the collection in the home of the late Mrs. Nettie G. Naumberg in West 67th st., New York.

In her will Mrs. Naumberg specified that the collection, which occupies the living and dining rooms and entrance hall of her home, be moved intact to the museum and set up with windows and ceilings approximately the same height from the floor and the dimensions of the rooms exactly the same.

The collection includes paintings, tapestries, textiles, statuary, furniture and other rare art objects. Mrs. Naumberg set aside a $100,000 fund for the removal of the collection to Cambridge, and another $25,000 fund for its upkeep. Harvard University must accept the collection within six months.

LAUDS HOOVER AT CHARITABLE IRISH DINNER

Postmaster-General Brown Says U. S. Is Through "Sowing Wild Oats"

The United States has Herbert Hoover to thank for its new found ability to solve problems without hit-or-miss lawmaking, thus indicating that the nation seems at last to have finished "sowing government wild oats," Postmaster-General Walter F. Brown stated at the annual dinner of the Charitable Irish Society at the Hotel Somerset.

Postmaster-General Brown asserted that he believes our country to be about to settle down and "lay aside the follies of youth."

President Hoover, he said, has inaugurated the system of "scientific diagnosis."

"It has been a popular practice," he said, "to attempt to cure any and all ailments of the body politic by the simple expedient of passing a law. Some individual or group finds a condition which apparently requires correction, draws public attention to it and exclaims, 'There ought to be a law.' Immediately the trial and error method of legislation is invoked.

"WASTE OF PUBLIC EFFORT"

"With only a perfunctory examination of the offensive condition, with scarcely any effort to ascertain and interpret the essential facts, spurred on by the impatience of our national youth, it has been our practice to 'pass a law.'

"This is a waste of the worst kind, not only a waste of public effort and of public money but a waste of public patience. It accounts, I think, in some measure for the light esteem in which many of our citizens hold their government and perhaps some of the laws found upon its statute books."

Governor Allen told the members of the society that the organization and the maintenance of their organization has been "characteristic of the temperament of your lineage."

"It is typical," he said, "of a people who have ever been possessed of genial manners, generous impulses and a spiritual devotion.

"Those 26 Irish gentlemen who, 193 years ago, founded the Charitable Irish Society of Boston took steps which have indeed led far and resulted well."

ALLEN PRESENTS FLAG

At the conclusion of his address, Governor Allen presented a silken flag, bearing the seal of the Commonwealth, to the Charitable Irish Society's new president, former Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge.

Other officers elected were Charles H. Sweetnam, vice-president; Joseph A. O'Neil, treasurer; John J. Keenan, secretary, and John W. Long, assistant secretary. Resolutions were adopted on the death of ex-President Taft, an honorary member of the society.

Congressman McCormack cited Washington's Farewell Address and reminded the 400 or more South Boston patriots in attendance that Washington stressed the dangers of foreign entanglements.

DATES SET FOR HEARINGS ON POWER BILLS

Question of Curb on Holding Companies Comes Up on April 10

The legislative committee on power and light has set April 10, 15 and 17 for hearings on the various recommendations and bills affecting electric light and power combines in the State.

The first day will be devoted to the need of additional regulations to curb holding companies, the second day to the subject of municipal lighting plants and the third day to related matters.

The recent majority report of the special commission, which studied electric and power manipulations recommended the enactment of 10 bills to improve conditions in the industry. Direct regulation of holding companies was not recommended, however.

Representative Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton in a minority report criticized the manner in which the investigation was conducted and condemned the commission for neglecting to summon and examine witnesses.

He declared it was clear that all competition between the several holding companies was being suppressed and he recommended placing all holding companies under direct control of the public utilities commission.

IRISH SONGS TO FEATURE PLAY

New Haven, March 18.—Larry Noble, for two years Yale hockey head coach, resigned, stating that he will begin practicing law in New York city next fall.

He also refused appointment as one of the Yale resident football coaches next season. Noble was formerly a football, baseball and hockey star. He had developed two of the strongest hockey teams ever produced at Yale.

1000 Yard Run is to Feature A. A. U. Meet

The 1000-yard duel between Ray Conger and Dr. Paul Martin will be the feature of the national A. A. U. indoor track and field championship meet at Madison Sq. Garden tonight

This race promises to be just as thrilling as the mile race at the K. C. games last week, which Conger won by inches. Martin thinks that he can trim Conger and there is logic in his reasoning. The only trouble is that the last lap kick which Ray always has left in him, no matter how fast the early pace, is good enough to confound any logic

It is true that Martin has beaten Conger at 1000 yards. He did it in Newark a month ago and by a comfortable margin. It was thought to be an accident at that time, for it was the first time in half a dozen starts that Martin had shown anything to sustain his reputation as Europe's best middle distance runner. But at the Manhattan College meet Dr. Paul won again—this time in a three-quarter mile run.

The supporting card is a brilliant one. Fred Sturdy defends his pole vault crown. Tommy Warne, who just won the Western Conference title with a leap of 13 feet 6 inches, seems to have an edge on Sturdy tomorrow afternoon or tomorrow morning and will train at one of the local gyms tomorrow.

50 ROUNDS ON GARDEN CARD

The entire card of bouts to be staged in the Garden Friday night has been completed. Fifty rounds of boxing will be held.

The bill will include three 10 rounders. In the feature bout Johnny Indrisano of East Boston will attempt to climb another rung in the welterweight ladder when he clashes with the hard-hitting Vince Dundee of Baltimore.

In the 10-round semi final, Jake Zeramby, Lynn lightweight star, will return to the wars against Jon Accetta of Providence, lightweight champion of Rhode Island. And in the third 10-rounder, Louis Nemis of Halifax, one of the best crowd pleasers ever to invade this city, will be given his opportunity to obtain national recognition when he battles Andy DiVodi, New York's sensational Italian welterweight.

In the six rounders, Jack McCarthy of Roxbury, the finest middleweight prospect that has popped in sight in many years, will toss punches at Johnny Milton of Peabody and Bobby Brown of Lowell, who sent the customers into a panic two weeks ago by his sensational fight with Buster Mallini will tackle the hard-hitting Steve Ketchell of Haverhill

Dundee is to arrive either this afternoon or tomorrow morning and will train at one of the local gyms tomorrow.

Chelsea High Five to Play in Title Tournament

Chelsea high has accepted an invitation to take part in the national interscholastic basketball tournament in Chicago from April 1 to 5. The invitation is usually extended to the winner of the M. I. T. tourney. Chelsea received the invitation from Harry O. Crisler, manager of the tournament, and Coach Kennealy immediately was given permission to wire acceptance.

Perlick Twins to Make Boston Bow

With the proposed lightweight battle between Billy Wallace of Cleveland and Andy Callahan of Lawrence now definitely set for April 3 in this city, Hub fans are eagerly looking forward to the debut in a Hub ring of the punching Perlick Twins of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Herman Perlick and Henry Perlick, the clouting kids from Kalamazoo are the reigning lights in the lightweight division and in spite of the fact that they are only 20 years old, nevertheless, there are few lightweights in the country that can compare with them in the ring.

EAGLE COACH IS AFTER HURLER

While Hughie Duffy's main objective at the present is the straightening out of his infield and outfield, both of which are jumbled up, he's not overlooking the task of finding a third-string pitcher for his Boston College nine.

Hughie has two reliables in Capt. Pete Herman and Jim O'Connor. Herman is a right-hander, while O'Connor shoots them up from the left. These two boys will fill the starring mound roles, being used alternately or according to whether the opposition is strong with left or right-handed batsmen.

B. C.'s schedule for the coming campaign, however, has some spots where more than two chuckers will be needed. There are four games during some of the weeks and trips on which three skirmishes come on successive days.

Herman, the strong boy of the Heights, might be able to take his turn on the mound every other day, but it is doubted if O'Connor could stand the grind and a third reliable moundsman is essential.

Harvard Grid Vets Report for Work

Taking advantage of the December-like weather, Head Coach Arnold Horween of Harvard planned another stiff workout for his Crimson grid charges today.

The Cantab mentor also plans to divide his squad into varsity and second varsity material after today's workout.

Spring football practice is apparently more popular than ever this season. Despite the fact that Soldiers' Field lay under a blanket of snow and sleet, 60 stalwarts reported for the first workout of the season.

Dick O'Connell, veteran Crimson wing, appeared in a new role as the Harvard grid warriors went to work today. O'Connell has been appointed assistant to Eddie Casey, and will teach the Crimson wing candidates during the spring practice session.

Captain-elect Ben Ticknor, Eddie Mays and Barry Wood failed to appear at the first workout, and investigation found all three working hard in the Briggs baseball cage where Fred Mitchell had his infielders wearing hard. Ticknor and Wood alternated at first base, while Eddie Mays turned in a good performance at second.

Quinn Makes Wagner Czar of Red Sox

By JOE CASHMAN

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 18—If Hennie Wagner doesn't succeed as manager of the Red Sox, he can never charge his failure to lack of authority.

For, before starting home today, Bob Quinn, president of the Fenway organization, called all the players together and impressed upon them that there is only one boss of the club and that he is none other than the pilot.

He told them that Wagner would decide who will be kept and who will be let out, make all the rules and hand down all decisions.

He added that Hennie's word would always be law with him and that he didn't want any player to attempt to go over the pilot's head, because it wouldn't do any good

In short, he made New Rochelle's favorite son absolute czar of the club as far as the playing end is concerned.

Pres. Quinn Gives His Pilots Full Control of Team

Quinn, unlike most magnates, has always given his managers free rein and the veterans of the club knew when Wagner was promoted to the job that he would be in absolute control, just as was Bill Carrigan and Lee Fohl

The rookies probably knew who was boss, too, before it was told to them officially. But the "Prexy" feared that some of the new comers might be doubtful about it, so he made it clear.

Few club owners would have made such a speech. The small number who let their pilots do as they please don't usually like to make the fact known, for some reason or other.

Quinn feels differently about it and believes that no club can succeed that has more than one boss, that the manager should be that boss, and that all the players should know it.

Morale of Club Strengthened by Quinn's Declaration

Bob has the right plan, we think, and, unless we miss our guess, his remarks will strengthen the morale of the club considerably.

The Red Sox journey to Mobile today for their first out-of-town exhibition game of the season.

They are not in the best of shape for the tilt. Rain has been falling almost steadily here since last Thursday and, except for the battle with Mobile, Sunday, and a short workout yesterday, the athletes have done little work in the past five days.

Still, they had such an easy time defeating the Bears on the Sabbath they are confident that they can repeat, in spite of their condition or lack of it.

All the fielders except Russ Scarritt, who has been working out at his home here all winter and doesn't need the practice, and Otis Miller, who is a bit stiff, are making the trip, as are six pitchers and three catchers

OPPOSING the New York Rangers, the Bruins will bring their regular season to a close tonight at the Boston Garden.

As the Rangers have lost the services of their great center, Frank Boucher, who is out for the season with a broken collar bone they will not be as formidable as they have been in the past

Bill Grimes

The injury to Boucher made it necessary for Manager Lester Patrick to revamp his forward line. He has made the Thompson, Murdock and Keeling combination his starting line and is using Sparky Vail, the former Springfield Indians, with the Cook brothers Bill and Bun

Since the Rangers were here more than two months ago, they have met with only average success, for they have won only seven games in 22 starts and have been in no less than eight ties

Capt. Fred Hitchman went through a long workout yesterday at the Garden, with Harry Conner and Myles Lane, and for a time he will be on his old berth against the Rangers. The return of Hitchman will boost the Bruins stock, for the big defense man is a stand out in his line.

Ching Johnson, who is as important to the Rangers as Hitchman is to the Bruins, will also be in action tonight. Ching played for a short time against the Pirates and although he is under weight gave a very creditable performance.

Hitchman and Johnson, Cripples, Will Play

Hitchman and Johnson will both wear specially constructed protectors, to eliminate as far as possible any injury to their fractured jaws.

Bill Regan, the former Tiger, who went to the Rangers in that famous Yip Foster and $15,000 deal, will make his big league debut here this evening. Bill has not been playing as regularly as he did with the Tigers but he has shown enough promise to be held for development by Manager Lester Patrick.

Although the outcome of this game will not affect the Bruins standing, if Chicago loses to Toronto, the Rangers can go into second place by turning back the American champions. Naturally, the Rangers would like to finish second but the same is true of the Hawks, who need only a tie with the Maple Leafs to cinch the runner up berth.

Shires' Brother Sent to Bridgeport Club

San Antonio, March 18 (AP)—Two heads have been lopped off, in a manner of speaking, by Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants, and one of them belonged to Leo Shires, brother of the "Great Shires."

Shires, an infielder, and Art Veltman, who can catch or play the outfield, have been sent to the Bridgeport club of the Eastern League, Giant farm.

Monte Wins From Bouquillon by Technical K. O.

BATTLE IS HALTED BY REFEREE

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

By RINGSIDE

JOE MONTE won over Moise Bouquillon on a technical knockout in eight rounds at an Arena Club show, but he didn't get all the glory. Not by a long shot.

Referee Johnny Martin stopped the contest when the gallant Frenchman was bleeding badly from a wound over his left eye. In the third round, Monte opened the wound inflicted on Bouquillon by Jim Maloney in their bout on the Sharkey-Scott card at Miami.

Up to the third frame it had been Bouquillon's fight. His crashing right hand punches to the chin and short, stinging left hooks to the jaw had Monte backing away.

It looked as though the Brockton youth was going to get licked.

One of Monte's whizzing right hand punches opened up the old wound over Bouquillon's left eye in the middle of the third round. From that point on it was Monte's bout. He kept directing his attack at Bouquillon's bad lamp.

Efforts to stop the flow of blood between rounds failed and the referee finally intervened and halted festivities

Bouquillon Refused to Stop Fighting

The fans were then furnished with one of the liveliest scenes witnessed in a Boston ring this year.

Bouquillon, unable to speak much English, didn't realize Johnny Martin had stopped the bout. He attempted to continue boxing. Martin seized the Frenchman and forced him back against the ropes.

But what did a lone referee matter to a stout-hearted Frenchman who wanted to keep tangled up in a fight. Bouquillon forced Martin back and the latter yelled for assistance from Gus Wilson, manager, and chief second of the Frenchman.

Gus apparently didn't like the idea of the referee halting the bout with Bouquillon still strong and he merely cast a few disdainful glances in the direction of Martin and Bouquillon.

Monte finally came off the ropes like a football star and brushed the referee aside. He was on top of Monte, and had gone to his own corner, in a second.

Wilson then hopped through the ropes and roared over to where the infuriated battler was attempting to get Monte to resume hostilities. Aided by Martin, Gus was able to pry the boxers apart. The indignant Bouquillon then pushed Wilson aside with a sock on the chin.

Things were beginning to look very progressive when a flock of handlers persuaded Bouquillon to return to his own corner.

It was pleasing to see a fighter in the ring who is willing to scrap, even though some of his battling was done after the contest ended.

Bouquillon has a stronger than Monte at the finish, and if it had not been for the injury he suffered he would have won.

Richards Wins Over Nadeau in Semifinal

Phil Richards of England tossed too many scores for Young Nadeau of Somersworth, N. H., and won the eight-round semifinal by a comfortable margin. It was a hard, fast bout. Nadeau was the aggressor, but Richards parried most of his blows and scored with sharp, stinging punches to the head and body.

Jackie Norton of Roxbury proved he is a comer by decisively whipping Johnny Gallo of East Boston in a four-round event. Norton is a fast boxer, and while he also hits well with each hand. He is a lightweight, and with experience should give a good account of himself against some of the leaders in his boxing division.

Leslie Baker of Watertown won in a round over Mickey McClernan of New London. Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury outpointed Frankie Herlihy of Lynn in four heats. Ug Gibson of Revere stopped Gus Brown of Canton in four sessions, while Pete McLaughlin of Charlestown won from Al Aldrich of Lawrence in four frames

Little Jack Dempsey was declared a loser on a foul in the second round of his bout with Arthur Nadeau of Cambridge. From where this writer sat it looked as though the alleged low blow landed in fair territory

Conway Adds Two More to List of Winners

JACK CONWAY added two more to his list of winning selections when Joe Monte defeated Moise Bouquillon and Primo Carnera licked Chuck Wiggins.

"The Monte selection would have run for Sweeney if Bouquillon hadn't suffered an injury over his left optic," said Jack. "The Frenchman was licking Monte when the latter opened up an old wound. Moise put up a hard fight and deserved a better break from Fate."

Conway's 1930 record follows:

| Won | Lost | Pct. |
|---|---|---|
| 22 | 8 | .846 |

Corbett Rates Sharkey as Best Heavyweight

JIM CORBETT stepped across the floor of the editorial department at a brisk pace and gave Mr. Boston a cheery hello and a warm handshake.

"I want you to meet Dinny Keleher," said Jim. "He was one of the greatest punchers the middleweight division ever produced and he comes from Boston."

"How young are you on this trip?" Mr Boston asked Corbett good naturedly.

"I'll be 61 in September."

"What do you think about the present heavyweight crop?" pressed Mr Boston.

"I consider Sharkey the best heavyweight in the world," replied the former champion. "He is a better boxer and also much smarter than any of the other fellows.

"I also rate Max Schmeling as a very good fighter. I saw the German in his bouts with Johnny Risko and Paulino. He knocked Risko out with his right-hand punches, while he beat Paulino by continually stabbing him with his left hand.

"Schmeling's right is his best weapon. I don't think a lot of his left. The more Max uses his left hand against Sharkey the better it will be for the Boston heavyweight. Jack has a truly great left hand.

"I was much impressed by the endurance Schmeling displayed in his 15-round contest with Paulino

"Schmeling stood off and gave him plenty of left hands. In the latter stages of the match, Max opened fire with his right. When the final gong sounded, Schmeling was not even puffing

"The has caused me to believe that if Sharkey can't land for a knockout at the gong and fails to stop Max inside of seven rounds he is going to have a lot of trouble on his hands. Of course it will be different if Sharkey elects to box.

"Nobody, of course, knows how good Schmeling will look if he'ssted a few times on the chin. He was not subjected to much punishment in his bouts with Risko or Paulino."

Believes Carnera Is Too Slow to Be a Champion

"WHAT about Carnera?" asked Mr Boston

"He is a big, strong fellow, but I believe he is too slow to become a champion," answered Corbett. "A puncher like Dempsey who would walk in close and hang away with both hands to the body would lick the Italian.

"Big fellows are usually all arms and are not able to fight when at close quarters.

"Willard defeated Johnson because the latter was strictly a defensive type of boxer.

"There are persons who claim the Johnson-Willard bout was fixed, but those charges are not supported. No man would stand up and let himself be beaten 26 rounds if he had agreed to lose. The reason why Johnson lost to Willard was because he wouldn't walk into his punch. Johnson, hitting while going away, couldn't hurt Willard. Johnson quit when he realized he would be knocked out.

"Carnera will beat any of the defensive heavyweights, but any puncher who will crowd him will end up with the victory."

Says Dempsey Must Win in a Hurry

"DO you think Dempsey will attempt another comeback?" asked Mr. Boston

"I had dinner with Dempsey and Gene Normile, his former business manager, in New York some time ago," went on Corbett, "and Normile asked me if I thought it would be wise for the old Tiger to re-enter the ring.

"I told him I believed Dempsey would be making a mistake if he didn't fight at least once more. He should cash in on his popularity.

"Just now Dempsey is a popular idol and can get $500,000 for fighting only one more heavyweight. As soon as some new sensation pops to the front, Dempsey will be forgotten. So he should cash in while he is still the darling of the mob.

"If Dempsey comes back, he will have to win inside of four rounds as his legs will not stand up any longer than that. Jack, however, always did his best fighting in the early rounds and so will he prepared to set a terrific pace from the opening gong. He might knock out a fellow like Carnera in a couple of rounds. He might also stop a slow moving opponent like Schmeling.

"Sharkey and Tunney move too fast to be cut down quickly by the old Tigers such

SONNY WILL BE FIT FOR BOUT

Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, will concentrate all his strength on defeating Henri Dglaine, undefeated French heavyweight champion, when they clash in a finish match at the Arena Thursday night.

The biggest little giant of the mat, for the first time in his career, cancelled a pair of bouts in order that he might whip himself into razor-edge condition for his battle with the fiery Frenchman. He was to have wrestled in Pittsfield last night, and Worcester, tomorrow night, but called off both matches of trouble on his hands. Of course it will be different if Sharkey elects to box.

"Nobody, of course, knows how good Schmeling will look if he'sted a few times on the chin. He was not subjected to much punishment in his bouts with Risko or Paulino."

Dglaine has everything a great wrestler needs—a dazzling assortment of holds, speed to burn, stamina, and most of all youth. He has turned in a series of startling victories in New England rings in the past two years, and culminated his great climb to the top by beating Jack Sherry in a sensational battle that went more than two hours, and by smashing Waldek Zbyszko, former champion of the world, to quick defeat.

Dglane in Perfect Condition for Bout

The Frenchman worked out before a capacity crowd in Toland's Gym. He is at the peak of his wrestling form, a superbly conditioned athlete ready for a long and gruelling battle. People of French descent from all parts of New England, and a special train with 400 from Montreal, will gather at the ringside to watch the flower of France.

The bout is the first international heavyweight wrestling match in which Sonnenberg has participated since winning the title, and will draw the largest crowd that has attended a match in the past year.

Dglaine will wind up his heavy training this afternoon, and will work out lightly tomorrow in order to keep the proper edge. Sonnenberg will train privately again today, and possibly tomorrow.

Carnera Adds Wiggins to K. O. List

St. Louis, Mo., March 18—Primo Carnera met Chuck Wiggins here in what was described before the battle as a "test" bout for the giant Italian Whether it was to be a test of Wiggin's ability to stand up and take the offerings of the Ambling Alp or a test of the ring to hold the bulk of the Latin Goliath is not known

For the two rounds that Wiggins was able to appear set-tle it looked like a glider test for the Indianapolis fighter

Twice in the first minute of the second round, Wiggins, propelled by the piston-like drives of Carnera went sailing through the ropes Having no parachute he fell heavily, and while lying outside the ropes after the second aerial flight, was counted out. He claimed that his back was injured and that he could fight no longer

Thus, Carnera chalked up his tenth consecutive victory of his American campaign The fight took place before a capacity house, and a crowd of about 25,000 was estimated to have paid close to $70,000 to witness the act

If Carnera continues to pack them in at the rate he has been doing his earnings will average close to a million dollars a year. Even with the cut that his several managers and backers must receive, the giant Italian is on the road to set a record for ring earnings

Minnie Malloy who promoted the Carnera-Wiggins bout, recently offered Jack Dempsey a million dollars to meet Carnera.

HOWLEY HAS HOPES FOR PENNANT

By BILL CONNELL

ST. PETERSBURG, March 18 —Weymouth Dan Howley, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, says that his team has a good chance to force any and all of the clubs in the National League to step all the way in the coming pennant race.

Daniel qualified that statement with a remark concerning the possibilities of his pitching staff, but nevertheless he has high hopes for the performance of his nine This is the first year that the capable pilot has been at the helm of the red engine and naturally he is anxious to see his athletes work well.

"My outfield, infield and catching department is powerful, quoth Manager Howley. "But the pitchers are unknown quantity. If they come through I am certain that the Reds will be in the thick of the fight right down to the final game this season

Allen, Musel Hillman and Walker are the best of the Cincinnati clan at present, any of these men fit into the garden nicely, all can hit and field

Horace Ford, Somerville Boy, in Infield

Horace Ford of Somerville, former Brave, is in the infield squad of the Reds with George Kelly, Leo Durocher, Stripp and Cuccinello. There are enough reserve young base path protectors on the club to provide plenty of extra strength.

Gooch and Sukeforth are capable backs, too, so it can be seen that Howley's confidence in his club has foundation

The pitching situation is not so good just now Kolp, Johnson and Frankhouse have been coming along slowly, and the veteran pitchers have shown little as yet

Howley has one consolation in the form of Fred Frazier, one of them has suffered any injury and the pack is improving every day.

The Reds departed for their Orlando, Fla., training camp immediately following their 10-9 victory here in St. Petersburg with the Yankees. The Yankees had a 4 to 1 decision over the Reds in that classic, which defeat did not bother the Reds general a bit

The Cincy squad has been training only since March 3, and the manager does not expect them to be right up to the top of their form yet. Howley figures in bringing the men along gradually, and they should be in good shape when the regular rows of the schedule start.

HARVARD NINE READY TO START

After two weeks of strenuous work-outs, the Crimson nine is rounding into shape, and Mitchell has virtually picked the team which will open the season with U. April 5

Three equally good batteries are ready to go to work for Harvard when the Crimson makes its 1930 debut with the Terriers. Charles Devens the Crimson sophomore pitching ace is teamed up with Johnny Sheldon, another sophomore who worked well with Devens last year.

Another has Lefty Page, a veteran of three campaigning tossing them in to Paul Ketchum And Red McBride who is dividing the honors with Devens as Harvard's best twirler makes a third battery with Bill Loughran

Mitchell hasn't been so well off for batteries for a long time The problem of finding a good backstop was solved when Hazlett out, and will be definitely settled if Tommy Gilligan becomes eligible to play within two days before the opening game

The Cantab first string infield is also pretty much settled with Rutty Wood, the Crimson four-year athlete holding down the first sack, a spot, Johnny Conroy playing second, Capt. Frank Nugent at shortstop and Howie Huxtable in the hot corner

Mitchell's three best gardeners at present are Ben Tickner, Eddie McGrath and Ben Bassett

Swim Tickets

Ticket applications for the intercollegiate swimming meet to be held at Harvard on the evenings of March 28 and 29 will close at the offices of the Harvard Athletic Association at 5 p. m. tomorrow night. Tickets for Friday evening will be $1 and those for Saturday will be $2.

GOOD GOLF

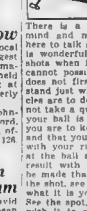
By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Thinking good golf swings as a mental step preliminary to making good golf swings is a golfing principle you should carefully follow along throughout your game. For example, I have in my years made I suppose, several hundred thousand golf shots, and I do not recall ever having made a good one when I had not beforehand visualized the shot completely before making it



There is a co-ordination between mind and muscle that I am not here to talk about today, but which is wonderful in its effect on golf shots when it is working. Now it cannot possibly work if the brain does not first perceive and understand just what it is that the muscles are to do. Therefore, you cannot take a quick look ahead, where your ball is to go, and then bring you are to keep a straight left arm and that you are to do this or that with your right hand, then swing at the ball and expect any decent result with it. Golf shots cannot be made that way. As you survey the shot, see in your mind precisely what it is you wish the ball to do See the spot, if possible, where you wish it to come to rest. See the shot completely, then at least your brain knows what you want to do

HINT HORSE WAS TAMPERED WITH

Liverpool, Eng., March 18 (AP)—One of the most amazing events in campaigns in the long history of the Grand National Steeplechase has culminated in suspicion of foul play. The poor showing of Gregalach, Grand National winner last year, in a trial race on Saturday provided the nucleus of the plaint.

Maj Gossage, who rode Gregalach, said the horse took the first fence sluggishly and ran listlessly throughout. Now Mrs. M. A. Gemmell, owner of Gregalach, has filed him out of the hands of Ted Leader and turned him over to the Waldon training establishment

The horse appeared sound in a workout today, but a further report from the veterinary is awaited.

Gregalach and Easter Hero, favorites for some time, have dropped to long odds now. Brown Grakle, at 16 to 1 against is the current favorite with Easter Hero second from a sponsored fandon and Sir Lindsay, at 100 to 8 against Gregalach is fourth in the betting at 20 to 1

Scott to Fight Maloney, Von Porat

New York, March 18 (INS) Emil Scott of the famous family of lumberjacks will leave from England in April and battle Otto Von Porat in Chicago and Jimmy Maloney in Boston, according to announcement today of Scott's manager, Jimmy Johnston. He also announced signing of Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion, for a bout against Bucky Lawless in Rochester, N Y., March 31

Manning Will Play Against Providence

Clarence "Sonny" Manning, the big boy from Coldwater, Ont., who has been going well on right wing for the Tigers in recent games, will be back in action with Thursday when the Bengals meet Providence Reds in the last home game of the Canadian-American League season.

Manning suffered a serious skate cut on his right leg in the game with Philadelphia last week. He was unable to play Sunday against New Haven and Manager Eddie Powers had to reconstruct his second forward line for the game.

As things stand now the Tigers need one more victory to land themselves in the playoff. One more defeat for New Haven would accomplish the same thing. Accordingly both the Tigers and the Philadelphia Arrows who are tied with them for second place, will be rooting for Providence in the game with the Eagles tonight.

THE GIRL WHO CAN'T HELP BEING A CHARMER

Should Avoid Cutting Into Romance of Others

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

WE all agree, I hope, that it's always "Hands Off" so far as each other's husbands are concerned. Likewise we respect each other's rights as to the men we're engaged to marry. But how about the men we merely hope to become engaged to? Can a woman expect all other women to stand aside until her love affair has crystallized? Or is there a kind of unspoken competition that is perfectly fair as long as no actual engagement has taken place?

Beatrice Fairfax

My own feeling is that a woman of honor and delicacy carries loyalty pretty far. She not only doesn't want to stand in the way of a friend's romantic projects, but she doesn't want even to seem to be an obstacle. A woman who is thoroughly "square" prefers that no other woman shall ever have the slightest reproach of this sort to make to her.

In the eyes of every man in it is the point that loyalty to other women is a good deal easier for a girl with—for instance—a bad complexion, a squat figure and tasteless clothes than it is for one who appears to men as a dewy rosebud picked at dawn or as an exquisite fragment torn from the edge of a rainbow.

It rather has to disqualified you that you actually have to work to win a man's attention, you are not likely to inspire jealousy and you won't have to worry about undercutting other girls. But if you have that mysterious quality that attracts men, you will always have to work hard at not making other women suffer.

If you are the kind of a girl who cannot enter a room without feeling the eyes of every man in it bent on her, you are sooner or later bound to be up against the problem of attracting a man that some other girl regards as her property.

And if you are at the same time a decent sort of person, with a warm heart and a sense of fairness, this is the sort of thing you won't care about doing.

These reflections are suggested by a letter from Carlotta X, who has the perilous gift I have been speaking of, but, at 17, is only just becoming aware of it. She has a sister of 20, who, I fear, is considerably less attractive.

This sister, however, was recently on the point of becoming engaged to a young man she is very much in love with. But, alas, the young man saw Carlotta and something immediately happened.

She smiled—he telephoned—she protested—he implored. Oh, well you know how those things go! Anyway, Carlotta is bewildered and the young man more or less delirious and the sister miserable—and Carlotta writes to ask if there is after all, any harm in letting her sister's beau make love to her since she herself isn't to blame and since the young man suddenly and excessively prefers her.

No, Carlotta. You can't help being pretty and attractive and fatal to men's peace of mind, but you can help appropriating a man your sister cares for. You can be so cool to this young man that he will understand and disappear. It would be your obligation to play fair with your sister, even if there weren't another man in the world. But for you, there will, of course, be plenty.

You will always, I suppose, be smiling distractingly in the direction of some flattered man. And he will always be begging the privilege of going out and killing dragons for you. And the women looking on will wonder why it is and what he sees in you.

I don't know, Carlotta, the life that yours will be!

There Is a Garden

"God the first garden made"

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

THERE is a garden. A dream garden that haunts the person who grubs all day in the city. A garden withdrawn; an escape, a belief, an ambition. An escape by the way of a faith in a better destiny than a life-time in a dingy, treeless world of stone. Sitting at a table in a restaurant that has its doubles by the city's thousands, its square of cloth doubtful white, ironed like its millions of companions—crooked. Served by a harried, indifferent waiter, who perhaps, weary of people and food, dreams too of escape, the man who grubs in the city thinks upon it! Outside the window a river of beings flows by like the river, seemingly forever. Everywhere noise like a colossal wrecker seems to be taking a whole world made of metal apart in a frenzy. The air, somewhere a fine blue, is here fogged over. The air, once thin and clean, is heavy with the scent of gasoline, the favorite perfume of that bold Queen—the City. Around him others drift in and out, lunching in confusion, outtalking one another. And for a hundred faces that are commonplace without ambition, is one that shows the mark of high dreams. For the one face, honest and free of a simplicity and directness, are hundreds impressed by the devious desires of the city.

Watching, the grubber thinks. "This is not all my life, not all of my destiny. I will not spend all my days walking on stone, between stone, working in and living in stone, my only trees Central Park—however, I do thank some long-dead city-fathers for it and pray that the present ones may keep it up better than they do——" That face over there with heavily blacked eyes. They are not the eyes that I shall see look some day into mine, nor the fixed smile of the pretty girl in the armies of pretty girls in the front row of a musical comedy, my ultimate woman-smile that will shine on me! I have a dream and there is a garden. A real garden: a real sky of blue real perfume and silence, broken only by the gentle music played by love. And in the garden is a pool: and a fair, kind woman bends there, looking in, waiting, for my face—even if it isn't that of Apollo—to appear beside hers.

"A fair woman, a garden, and love. Some day I will have that. But this I fear, like the poet, that if ever I do get these, the rest of the world will find out how happy I am, and will come and make a city there!"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Breathe Deep for Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health

HEALTH is a natural thing. Bad health is unnatural.

Most diseases are brought upon us by ourselves. They are due to our lack of knowledge of nature's laws, or to lack of common sense to act in accordance with these natural laws.

Dr. Copeland

The normal, healthy body wards off infection and disease. The wonderfully efficient methods by which the body protects itself are only now being discovered. We are beginning to understand the working of the complex glands of the heart, lungs and other vital organs, to protect the healing power of nature.

Children, the vast majority of them, are born with sound health. Too many of them are allowed when young, to form bad habits of one kind or another. This is a pity.

Every child should be taught deep breathing. It should receive attention in the very earliest years.

Good lung action is absolutely essential to good health. When you see a person whose body lacks symmetrical development around the chest you may know it is due to lack of deep breathing.

Deep breathing means that your very elastic lungs are opened wide enough to take in a large volume of air giving oxygen to the blood as you breathe. If that air is pure, then you are building up your body.

If you are on a mountain top where the air is uncontaminated, that is quite a different thing from being in the midst of crowds of people in the city. In the latter case, the air is defiled from sprays, dust and dirt, and the foul air exerted from millions of persons.

The blood circulates through the lungs and around the body three times in about a minute. Each time the blood passes from the right side of the heart into the lungs it is dark purple in color. It is saturated with the waste products of the system picked up by the blood as it passes through the body. When you draw a breath, these waste products are expelled in air and moisture.

When you inhale, the air is drawn into the lungs, oxygen is absorbed through the thin walls of the tiny blood vessels of the lung structure and thence into the blood stream. Here the impure purple blood comes in pure form as a red color, and returns to the heart from the lungs, purified for its journey around the body again. It takes with it life and vigor.

Now you can see how important it is to take deep breaths, and to form the habit when very young.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

MRS. E. D. R. Q.—What do you advise for superfluous hair?

2.—What causes blue spots as big as a dime on the arms and legs?

3.—What causes blisters on the tongue after eating acid foods?

A.—Send self addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

2.—This may be due to "purpura." It would be wise to have an examination by your doctor.

3.—This is probably due to hyperacidity caused by faulty diet and poor elimination.

MRS. D. Q.—What causes a boy of twenty to sit and stare, and talk to himself?

A.—Have him given a careful examination by the family doctor.

MRS. G. R. H. Q.—How can I reduce weight?

A.—Eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Get regular systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with the regular exercises will work wonders in most cases.

Teach Child to Be Sincere

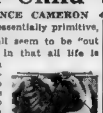
By CONSTANCE CAMERON

WE are all essentially primitive, and we all seem to be "out for ourselves." In that all life is competition and especial aim is to excel. So it is a hard task to be sincere when our neighbor gets the big contract we've been looking on, or wins the short story prize we were sure of getting—big off for ourselves.



Constance Cameron

It is only by stern discipline, a severe attempt to be fair with others and a cultivated sense of social values that we bring ourselves to share the other fellow's happiness in his success, when we've had to lose to let him win.

So it is no wonder that it is hard for children to be glad when a friend succeeds where they fail.

Sonny came home all upset. Nothing was right, and his face was like a storm cloud. His mother sensed that something had gone wrong and patiently waited for the outburst which was sure to be forthcoming.

And it came. "Jimmie won a button for wrestling!" he snorted, high disdain finally. "I don't think that's anything wonderful to do, do you?"

But the mother sensed envy and jealousy and the making of a bad loser in her son, so she replied: "I think that was lovely. Why don't you try for a button in arithmetic? You are a little better in arithmetic than you are in writing and you have a good chance to get a button there."

"Huh!" sneered Sonny, with a kick at the chair leg; "who cares about a little old button? That's nothing to get!"

"Yes, indeed, it is something to get," answered mother. "And I shall be very proud of you when you get one for arithmetic. And don't say, 'Who wants a little old button' like that. I want one. And you can get one if you try. Just now I think it would be the gentlemanly thing for you to go and phone Jimmy and congratulate him. He'd your best friend and he has won an honor. All gentlemen congratulate their friends on a success like that."

When Sonny loses out, remind him of what he can do very well. And also remind him that real friends are happy over each other's success.

Is 'Awfully Nice' Proper?

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Isn't it very incorrect to say a thing is "awfully nice?"

2—Is a black bow tie and wing collar worn with any but a dinner or full dress suit?

LEADER.

1—"Awfully nice" is a colloquialism and is accepted as such, although, of course, "awful" and "nice" do not consistently belong together. However, we would all sound like prigs if we abandoned all colloquialisms. To judge whether a phrase of this kind is permissible, ask yourself, "Is this in good taste?" and let your taste be your guide. However, don't indulge in too much slang, or too many colloquialisms, or you will lose the native value of your words.

A wing waistcoat is often worn by smart men with the dinner-jacket and is, I think, especially good looking.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly advise me if I must wear mourning for my husband's mother and, if so, for how long?

Brookline. MRS. B. S.

The wearing of mourning nowadays is almost entirely, indeed entirely, a matter of personal choice and circumstances and convenience. The former strict rules for wearing mourning, as to kind and degree and length of time no longer are regarded, and people do about as they wish.

You should wear black to the funeral, and wear dark clothes for a few months after the death.

However, there are special points that must be considered. If your husband's mother lived with you or visited you frequently, and he wishes to have you, then you should. It would be most unkind and discourteous to him and to the memory of his mother if you did not take into account his wishes on this matter. Often one has relatives and friends for whom as a matter of form a kind that they expect one to wear mourning for at least a few months. If this is so, when it is better to respect the wishes of others.

In other words, circumstances have practically everything to do with the wearing of mourning. If you feel any question about it, you will be correct in wearing black (and, however, some black and white for, say six months.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Does a formal tea invitation, such as—afternoon tea—date and time—necessitate an acceptance?

MISS BROWN.

No, not the usual tea invitation. The only kind of tea invitation that calls for acknowledgment is the one that carries on it the request for an answer, R. S. V. P., or something of this kind.

Mrs. R., Brockton—Pay for it, including tips, in advance.

Miss F. E. T., Brookline—You may permit the man to pay your fare.

A., Woonsocket — The name should be signed Mrs. John Doe. This applies to a widow also. Use bouillon spoons. Bouillon may be drunk after some of it has been spooned out.

Lovejoy -:- Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER 57

HE came around the table to her and drew her into his arms. "It doesn't matter what happened then. Things are all right now, aren't they?" He kissed her. "We'll be married in six months and you'll have your baby—and everything will be fine as silk."

The telephone bell rang sharply in the nighttime stillness of the house.

If Aunt Em had been in the house next door her voice could not have been more clear.

"Everything's just fine, Lovejoy," she said. "I baked the baby his birthday cake and put a pink candle on it!"

It was not until that moment that Lovejoy realized that yesterday had been young Tommy's first birthday.

"You didn't let him have any of the cake, did you?" she asked anxiously.

"Well—just a tiny bit," said Aunt Em. "And I soaked that in his milk."

Lovejoy groaned into the mouthpiece. But Aunt Em was running along cheerfully and didn't hear her.

"Now, don't you worry about anything," she was saying. "This ain't the first baby I've taken care of, remember I brought you up all safe and sound, didn't I?"

"Yes. But please don't give Tommy any more cake!" Lovejoy wailed into the telephone. "Keep him on milk and orange juice and spinach juice until I come home, please, please, PLEASE!

"All right," answered Aunt Em's voice. "Don't yell at me, Lovejoy! And you'd better hang up now. This must be costing you lots of money—Don't forget to send me your address. Better telegraph it."

There was a clicking and a humming of the wire as she hung up.

Lovejoy hung up her receiver, too. She sat looking at the telephone for a minute or two with staring, troubled eyes.

"She's been feeding the baby birthday cake!" she said finally to Steve. "Can you features that?"

Steve leaned across the table and took both of her hands in his.

"I wouldn't worry about it, dearest," he said in his sensible and soothing way. "You told her not to do it again, and it'll be another year before the baby has another birthday cake. She didn't say he was sick, did she?"

Lovejoy shook her head with its satiny waves and its little ringlets around the ears. She looked like a little girl curled up in a chair in her woolly pink robe.

"No, Steve, she said everything was fine. She said I wasn't to worry about a thing."

"Well, then why borrow trouble?" asked Steve. "Run upstairs now and try to get some sleep. You have a big day ahead of you tomorrow. Major Badminton is coming up from Los Angeles to talk to you."

Major Badminton had been Sheila's lawyer at the time she divorced Ellsworth Nettles.

"I'm going back with him, and at the end of the week I'll drive up here to get you and Sheila," Steve went on. "You don't have to stay here every minute of the time you're establishing your residence, you know. You can take a lot of trips with me and Sheila . . . Yosemite Falls, Lake Tahoe and the redwood forests and Death Valley and—"

"What about Hollywood? I'd like to see Hollywood!" Lovejoy cried, her gray eyes shining like stars in the lamplight. "Steve, I've longed about it in the moving-picture magazines until I think I could find my way around it, blindfold'—Well, drive down there, won't we, Steve?"

He nodded, smiling at her enthusiasm. "Yes, if we can get Sheila to go. She loathes the place," he said. "She'll kick if we try to get her past Santa Barbara."

The next morning at breakfast Lovejoy spoke to her about going to Hollywood.

"You won't like it, Lovejoy," she said lazily, glancing up from her plate. "But like only a hundred miles from Santa Barbara. You and Steve could drive down there and back in a day and have hours to spare besides."

And so it was settled.

Major Badminton came the next afternoon and Lovejoy sat in the cool, shadowy hall of the ranch house and told him all her troubles for two hours.

He went away late that night, assuring her that she would have her divorce in a few months without any fuss. "And if that husband of yours tries to make any trouble," he said, shaking hands with her, "I'll just threaten him with his own affair with the Shane woman."

It seemed odd to hear him speak of Norrie and Tom in that way—"that husband of yours" and "the Shane woman."

Steve went away with him.

On Saturday morning he came back. He came back in a huge black and white touring car decorated with California license plates.

A Dish for Every Day

FOR the spring bridge luncheon or evening party, I think you'll enjoy these dainty Tulip Cakes. The foundation cake itself is very simple. The beauty is in the decorations, which while simple are extremely effective. After the cake is frosted with a simple white frosting, strips of angelica are cut into stemlike pieces and the tiny cordial drops arranged on them like attractive daintily colored blossoms. The effect is truly lovely.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

bound it with a strip of clean dishtowel. That moment of close contact, when he held her hand in his own, silenced the man's high spirits and sent the blood surging through his body.

They ate lunch on the shady side of the deck overlooking the blue bay. Ken was in hilarious spirits again. He played waiter, hanging a napkin over his arm and waving Ardeth to her seat with an elaborate flourish.

"Salmon, lamb, ram, sheep or mutton? Name yer animal, ladyl! The steak is the piece of resistance—if you bend it we can't take it back!"

After luncheon they cleared the table, stacked the clean plates back on the kitchen shelves and went out again onto the deck.

Ardeth flung herself on a rattan couch piled with faded cushions. Ken perched on the rail and lit a cigarette.

At first they talked easily. Gay inconsequential chatter—of the shop—of Jeanette—Ken told incidents of his college days. He spoke of Tom Corbett, who owned the ark with him.

"We roomed together at the university, Tom's a prince of a fellow. I'll bring him in sometime to meet you. I've an idea Jeanette likes him pretty well. Maybe if he'd come today Jennie would have forgot to remember her house party. Oh, well, we don't miss 'em, do we, Moth?"

Ken grew conscious of the eyes that were fixed upon him. He felt a shaky little laugh.

"I should say not! It's their loss—"

And suddenly she could not go on.

Silence growing between them. Spreading. The wide sunflooded country was tremulous with expectancy. The air between them ached with unspoken words.

She felt the weight of Ken's gaze but found, of a sudden that she could not lift her lashes. Her heart set up a rapid pounding.

Ken had slipped from the rail to the couch and seated himself beside her on the couch.

Then his arms were about her in his ardent face poised over her own.

"Oh . . no!" Her own voice in an unconvincing little gasp just before his lips crushed down on her own in a kiss which seemed to draw her heart between her lips.

Fads and Fashions

A Reign of Popularity is predicted for the raincoats of waterproofed satin that are soon to be worn. The smart model is one of proofed satin in a soft blue shade. It is cut on military lines and is fastened with dull silver filigree buttons. With it is shown a matching beret.

Simplicity Is Smart when it is carried out in the form of a simple evening frock of white net, delicately flowered in pink. The end of the deep V decolletage is marked by a bow and long ends of matching pink velvet. The bodice has a slight peplum and the skirt is long and full. The slippers are of matching pink crepe de chine.

Relations Are Nice when they are of fashion's family. Very new is the relationship between suit and topcoat. This is seen in a suit of fine tweed in pale yellow with a double-breasted jacket with brown leather buttons. Over this is worn a topcoat of the same material.

BOARD UNABLE TO CURB STOCK SPECULATION

By FRANK B. MELOON
Financial Editor

Recent writings by Wall and State Street economists reveal a faith in the ability of the Federal Reserve Board to curb stock market speculation. The faith is amusing to those who realize how sadly the board failed in its efforts to curb disastrous speculation only last year. There are, of course, those who think the Reserve Board was not designed to regulate the rise and fall of the stock market.

The Federal Reserve Board, of which Charles S. Hamlin is the  Charles S. Hamlin advised.

Reference to Mr. Hamlin recalls that in 1919 he refused a definite offer to appoint Benjamin Strong to the treasury as successor to Secretary Carter Glass.

Thousands of Americans are contributing this week to the British income tax. Their contributions amount to 20 per cent of the dividend received on Ford Motor Co., Ltd., stock. The 20 per cent discount for the British government  (Associated Press (International News-reel Photos)
Charles S. McCain Albert H. Wiggin

is made by the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, which is distributing the dividends, so there is no chance to evade paying your British income tax if you are a stockholder in this company. Ford stock has been very widely distributed in this country.

As this is dictated, announcement is momentarily expected of a three-party merger creating in New York what will be in all respects the world's largest bank. Until late last year the world's largest bank was not an American institution. Albert H. Wiggin, former Boston banker, is expected to be chairman of the executive committee of the new and mighty leader. Charles S. McCain is reported scheduled as the active man of the board and Winthrop W. Aldrich, brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, jr., is expected to assume the presidency.

Wall and State Streets hear that negotiations for this merger, uniting the Chase National Bank, Equitable Trust Co. and Interstate Trust Co. have progressed to a stage where practically all essential terms are agreed upon. It is understood the terms of the Chase-Equitable consolidation will be four shares of Chase for five of Equitable. Interstate will be merged on basis of 2½ Interstate for one of Equitable. The ultimate institution will be a national bank under the title of Chase National Bank.

The three-cornered merger will result in a combined institution with total resources of over $2,000,000,000, making it the largest bank in the country and overtopping the National City Bank by some $600,000,000. This will also make it the largest bank in the world. National City Bank has held the distinction of being the largest bank in America since 1897, when it developed resources of $100,000,000. Chase National Bank and Equitable Trust Co. hold special directors' meetings at 2:30 this afternoon to be followed immediately by meetings of their respective companies to act upon the merger terms.

One of the most active traders in the street has just returned from California. He appeared decidedly convinced that the oils have turned. Conversation with practically every oil official or broker encountered on the west coast warrants such opinion, he maintains. They are all working in harmony and the advance in price of crude by Standard Oil of California marked a lasting turn in price trend.

Incidentally that advance, while only 25 cents a barrel, represents almost 100 per cent increase in profit for some producers, for under the previous prevailing schedules they were getting only 25 cents a barrel profit on their output.

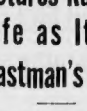
Pictures Rural Life as It Is; Eastman's Faith

Calls Farmers Happy, Not Starving; "Advertise More"—Eastman

—By B. C. FORBES—



B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, March 18—You will enjoy this picture of rural life in America.

It is particularly refreshing at this time when so much pessimism abounds concerning farm prices and the lot of our farmers.

It comes, for readers of this column, from Harold Olsen, of North Bend, Wisconsin:

"I go throughout the U. S. at present there is a tremendous amount of discussion in regard to 'hard times,' unemployment, business depression and 'what is to become of the little fellow?'

"Being engaged in the retail mercantile business in a town of less than 200 inhabitants, in the western part of the dairy section of Wisconsin, we come in contact with the actual complaints of a dairying community. Last year our store did a business of $35,000 on $12,000 stock, and this year our sales are holding even with last year. The resources of our bank are over $300,000, and our co-operative creamery last year paid out over $225,000 for butter.

"It has been estimated by conservative critics that there is over $600,000 of life insurance carried in force in our locality. There is a radio in practically every home and scores of autos to average two to every home. The village is adequately served with electricity, and about 75 per cent of our farmers are enjoying the same privilege. We have regular city waterworks with a sewerage and nearly every home in our village attached to it. We have five fraternities and one church with a membership of over 200. This year we raised over $2000 to cover all expenses of operating it.

"Our local and state taxes this year are about 25 per cent higher than last year. The farmers are receiving 25 per cent less for their dairy products and eggs are bringing the lowest price since 1921. The price of beef and veal is much lower than at any time since 1921.

"But times are not bad, nor is America held-bent for a long degression as we consider every other phase of the situation.

"We have to drive twenty-five miles to hear a good symphony, and if we are not there by 7 o'clock the theaters are filled, and we have to wait until the second show commences. When we hear that tobacco companies made only 119,000,000,000 cigarettes in one year, that the United States buys only 16 billions of insurance in one year, and who in the world knows what is spent for candy and cosmetics, regardless of what goes into Saturday night hand dances, and that one oil company makes a net profit of 100 million dollars in one year—where does it all come from, if not from the masses?

"Yes, America is prosperous. Just a little ripple of a wave makes a terrible rumpus with some folks, and now when the other day I see and march the streets and say 'We have a h— of a President.' We all know that many have broke and many are badly bent since the stock market break, but goodness knows that we country people always have been butter instead of oleomargarine to stabilize industry.

"Our store has been in business for over thirty-five years, and we are still going strong."

After comparing little and big business and emphasizing the necessity for organized business, he adds:

"We, the common people of this rural district, are beginning to realize that the great prosperity we are now having is largely due to the large, organized, efficient business that has produced the many luxuries and necessities we now enjoy."

Having read that delightful letter from a little business man in this one from one of America's biggest business men, George Eastman, written the other day to Sturgis Dorrance, New York:

"During the 50 years that the Eastman Co. has been in business there have been several times when at the outset of one of these years we have faced what seemed to be an abnormally bad condition in general business. On these occasions the question of retrenchment in our advertising has naturally come up for discussion. Our decision each has been, 'Spend a little more money and do a lot more hard work.'

"I am not at all sure there is a depression facing us but to be on the safe side, the Eastman Kodak Co. is taking the same attitude that it did in 1908 and in 1914.

"And just as advertising has played such a vital part in the expansion of the business of the Eastman Kodak Co. so we believe it to be a most powerful force in the building of our many great American industries in the wide diffusion and maintenance of our national prosperity."

CURB MARKET OIL SHARES ARE WELL BOUGHT

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, March 18 (AP)—Speculation for the rise on the curb market received a sharp impetus from the Department of Labor's report on employment, and the fresh ease in credit rates.

Oil shares were in sustained demand as a result of the more cheerful reports coming from various circles in the industry and again eagerly bid for, in response to further merger prospects.

That the merger movement in the utility field still has far to go was confirmed by Matthew Sloan, president of the New York Edison Company, in an article written for the National Electric Light Association's magazine.

Humble and Gulf continued to rise further, but profit taking robbed them of the buoyancy displayed yesterday. Gulf sold exdividend. Several of the lower priced issues, however, showed increasing bullish activity. International Petroleum, Imperial of Canada, South Penn, and Continental of Maine were among issues selling around the best levels of the day.

In the utilities, Electric Bond & Shares was sent up above the 100 mark, presumably as a contributed to the prominent part which Bond & Share interests are playing in the Electric Bond and Light-United Gas merger. United Gas was heavily traded, selling above at the high time of the year. European Electric, in the recent formation of which Bond & Share took a prominent part, was also strong, selling up to record heights. U. S. Power and United Founders attracted better support relying moderately. Niagara-Hudson was also firmer.

American Cyanamid B was a feature of the industrials, breaking out of its recent narrow trading range with a jump of about 3 points, taking it almost 20 to a new high for the year. The Pacific Coast Biscuit shares, recently under pressure in connection with news of a hitch in the merger negotiations with National Biscuit, turned upward with a sensational flash. Crocker Wheeler penetrated new high ground.

Investment trusts continued to fluctuate narrowly. The Blue Ridge issues were active, however, the preferred rising fractionally to a new top for the recovery.

EARNINGS AT FRESH PEAK

Chicago, March 18—Record sales and earnings for 1929 are the annual report of the Winton Engine Co. for the year ended October 31, 1929. The report also shows that debenture bonds outstanding to the amount of $1,900, due the end of 1925, were retired in full during 1929 and in addition, the number of preference shares outstanding was reduced, through conversion, from 30,000 shares in 1928 to 17,908 in 1929.

Net income from 1929 amounting to $863,085 was 114 per cent greater than the 1928 profit and is equivalent after preferential dividends to $10.50 a share on 77,092 shares of common stock. For 1928, the company reported net income of $403,139, equal to $7.83 a share on 40,000 shares of the common stock.

"At the beginning of the current year, unfilled orders on hand equalled the unfilled orders at the beginning of the previous year and the year 1930 gives promise of being a prosperous one," George W. Codrington, president, says in his remarks to the stockholders accompanying the annual report.

"Since the declaration of dividends on the common stock, more than half of the preference dividence stock has been exchanged for common in accordance with its terms and as stated in 1928, there were only 13,273 shares of the convertible preference stock outstanding, as against 30,909 shares a year ago."

Niagara Falls Gas Used for Alcohol

New York, March 18—Wastegases from the large carbine furnaces at Niagara Falls, N. Y., plant of the Carbine & Chemical Corporation, a subsidiary of the Union Carbide & Carbon Corporation, are now being utilized in the manufacture of synthetic methyl alcohol, according to a report by Pask & Walbridge, members of the New York Stock Exchange. Manufacture and shipments have been begun on a moderate scale.

A new plant for the making of ethyl or grain alcohol synthetically is under construction and will be placed in operation sometime in August, with an initial production at an annual rate of 10,000,000 gallons. The new product has a quality said to be suitable for pharmaceutical as well as general industrial purposes.

BOND MARKET HAS INCREASE IN DEMAND

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, March 18 (AP)—Inquiry for bonds increased today in both the listed and unlisted markets. Time money, quoted as low as 3½ per cent for the short maturity by some dealers, touched a minimum for several years, contrasting with the 8 per cent rate of a year ago. Call money again appeared in the outside market at 2½ per cent. While the official stock exchange rate fell to 3 after renewing at 3½.

Although interest charges have declined here for three or four months, other sections of the country did not experience a similar relaxation in credit. Now, however, there are indications of a downward tendency elsewhere and this trend is being reflected in the present bond market.

The extent to which prices have improved during the last week was noted today in the offering of Pere Marquette Railway's $14,000,000 issue of 30-year 4½s, priced to yield 4.65%. A day ago the Pennsylvania Railroad marketed a $60,000,000 issue bearing the same coupon at a yield of 4.85. Quotations in the unlisted security field have gone forward rapidly, with the result that prime municipals are now netting below 4 per cent, the lowest in about three years.

The Pere Marquette bonds, sold at 97, traded actively above 98 on a when issued basis. An oversubscription was reported.

Leading railroad issues during the earlier trading included Canadian National 4½s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Rock Island 4½s, Pennsylvania 5s and 4½s, and Chicago & Erie first 5s. The first six named rose more than a point.

Buying in other sections of the list embraced numerous investment utilities, industrials and convertibles. Oil bonds were again active, led by the pure oil issues, which held firm in the issuance of $20,000,000 in 10-year 3½ per cent gold notes at 97½. Shell Union 5s and Texas Corp. convertible 5s traded at their year's highs. Western Union Gold 5s, Armour 5½s, Warner Brothers Pictures 6s and several other amusements issues were higher.

American Telephone 4½s led the convertibles, rising more than a point. American Int. Chemical 5½s touched a new high for the movement. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s advanced to 102, a record price since their recent admission to the New York Stock Exchange.

United States Governments were steady. Latin-American bonds featured the foreign group, with some new steady accumulation of the Belgians. French Republic 7s and 7½s sagged.

COTTON AT NEW HIGH ON MOVE

New York, March 18 — Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 13 points on a continuation of the covering movement in the old crop months, which were relatively firm again this morning. Liverpool just about met yesterday's local advance. After some irregularity, the market was up prior to 15:38 for May, making a new high for the present movement and a net advance of about 10 to 25 points on old crop positions.

Later deliveries were rather slow in following the advance, showing 5 to 12 points net higher, or back to about the best prices of yesterday afternoon.

Trading was moderately active and the fluctuations suggested continued spasmodic covering of the month situation, particularly with reference to May. The difference between May in New York and Liverpool narrowed to about 75 points during the early trading.

Liverpool cables implied Continental and Bombay buying with an absence of selling pressure in that market and said there was an improved cloth demand for Egypt and South America.

SCOTT TO SELL DRESSES, SUITS

Scott Furriers, New England largest fur establishment, announces the opening of a new dress, suit and coat department, which now occupies one of the entire floors of their store at 69 Summer st.

With the opening of the new Scott Furriers stores in Hartford and Providence, the growth of this organization has been phenomenal. The Boston store has approximately 20,000 feet of floor space, a fur cleaning plant, spacious offices, twenty private or individual offices for their customers and a large sun-lighted work shop, one of the largest in New England. In addition to this, Scott Furriers has practically unlimited facilities for fur storage.

Senator Swanson Tears Mask Off Proposed "Consultation" Pact

MORE good news to the Nation. A second leading Democratic United States Senator has declared flatly against involving the United States in Europe's affairs via the Kellogg Pact.

Senator Claude Swanson of Virginia, speaking in Washington, has duplicated the sentiments of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, speaking in London. Senator Swanson said on March 9:

"I DO NOT FAVOR ENTERING INTO ANY MEDITERRANEAN PACT OR EXTENSION OF THE KELLOGG TREATY TO CONSTITUTE A PACT AS SUGGESTED IN THE NAVAL CONFERENCE AT LONDON.

"IF IT MEANS SOMETHING, AND HAS ANY POTENCY WHATEVER, IT MEANS THAT THE UNITED STATES OBLIGATES ITSELF TO KEEP THE PEACE IN EUROPE AND ELSEWHERE AND WOULD BE PARTY TO THE DEMANDS AND SUGGESTIONS MADE AT ANY CONFERENCE FOR THIS PURPOSE, WHEN CALLED."

With these words, Senator Swanson drags the elaborate drapery off the proposed "consultation pact," an agreement for us to join England, France, Japan and Italy in "consultation" whenever their peace is threatened. Of course, as Senator Swanson says, we would be expected to carry out the majority vote on what to do about it.

Senator Swanson shows the further results of signing a "conference pact":

"THIS WOULD BE AN ABANDONMENT OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE. THE CONFERENCE WOULD BE CALLED BY EUROPEAN POWERS TO INTERFERE AS MUCH IN AMERICA AS IN EUROPE.

"I DO NOT SEE HOW THE UNITED STATES COULD BE PARTY TO A PACT IN WHICH IT WOULD INTRUDE ITSELF INTO EUROPEAN AFFAIRS AND NOT PERMIT EUROPEAN NATIONS TO INTRUDE THEMSELVES INTO AMERICAN AFFAIRS."

That is exactly what was said by Thomas Jefferson, founder of Senator Swanson's Democratic Party, in a letter to President Monroe, dated October 24, 1823, just thirty-two days before President Monroe addressed Congress and announced the Monroe Doctrine to the world. Jefferson wrote:

"OUR FIRST AND FUNDAMENTAL MAXIM SHOULD BE NEVER TO ENTANGLE OURSELVES IN THE BROILS OF EUROPE. OUR SECOND, NEVER TO SUFFER EUROPE TO INTERMEDDLE WITH CIS-ATLANTIC AFFAIRS. AMERICA, NORTH AND SOUTH, HAS A SET OF INTERESTS DISTINCT FROM THOSE OF EUROPE, AND PECULIARLY HER OWN. SHE SHOULD, THEREFORE HAVE A SYSTEM OF HER OWN, SEPARATE AND APART FROM THAT OF EUROPE."—Jefferson to Monroe, October 24, 1823.

It is a happy day for the Democratic Party and for the Nation if, as Senators Swanson and Robinson indicate, the party is returning to the principles of its founder, who said:

"THE CONSTITUTION THOUGHT IT WISE TO RESTRAIN THE EXECUTIVE AND SENATE FROM ENTANGLING AND EMBROILING OUR AFFAIRS WITH THOSE OF EUROPE."—Thomas Jefferson, in Parliamentary Manual, 1800.

"DO WHAT IS RIGHT, LEAVING THE PEOPLE OF EUROPE TO ACT THEIR FOLLIES AND CRIMES AMONG THEMSELVES, WHILE WE PURSUE IN GOOD FAITH THE PATHS OF PEACE AND PROSPERITY."—From a letter from Thomas Jefferson to President Monroe, June, 1823.

"PEACE, COMMERCE AND HONEST FRIENDSHIP WITH ALL NATIONS, ENTANGLING ALLIANCES WITH NONE...I DEEM ONE OF THE ESSENTIAL PRINCIPLES OF OUR GOVERNMENT, AND, CONSEQUENTLY, ONE WHICH OUGHT TO SHAPE ITS ADMINISTRATION."—From Thomas Jefferson's First Inaugural Address.

"...AND I AM NOT FOR LINKING OURSELVES BY NEW TREATIES WITH THE QUARRELS OF EUROPE; ENTERING THAT FIELD OF SLAUGHTER TO PRESERVE THEIR BALANCE...THE FIRST OBJECT OF MY HEART IS MY OWN COUNTRY."—From "Writings of Thomas Jefferson," Ford Edition; Letter to Elbridge Gerry, 1799.

Working Night and Day

Busy Boston Factory

IN the neighborhood of Dorchester Avenue and First Street in South Boston is a manufacturing organization, known the wide-world over, whose 14-acre plant is busy night and day.

The Gillette Safety Razor Company, with 3500 names on its payroll—an increase of 800 in the past few weeks—has NEVER known a poor year.

Stocks may be active or otherwise. There may be floods in this section, earthquakes in that. One great industry or another may be in the doldrums, this one knows no other song than "Prosperity."

From 51 razors and only 14 packages of blades in 1903, Gillette sales jumped to 90,000 razors and 10,000 packages of blades in 1904, then to 1,000,000 razors and 10,000,000 packages of blades in 1917. Last year, an increasing demand from every country under the sun called for an average daily production of 3000 razors and 2,000,000 blades.

How about 1930?

"Gillette," says General Manager Frank J. Fahey, "is entering upon the greatest era in its history. NEW blade and NEW razor have met with such a reception that it will be months before we can supply the domestic market. After that, we shall begin to pay attention to the foreign demand. It looks as if the present employment peak might continue indefinitely."

The lesson appears to be that if you can produce an excellent product which the world needs, and will take care to let the world know you have it, you may have to call upon the experts to explain what they mean by "business depression."

Some Skulls Are Thin

Why the Swampscott Police Officer NEVER Uses His Club

THE place to be arrested—if you feel that you must be arrested—is Swampscott.

Chief of Police Walter Reeves of Swampscott is utterly and absolutely opposed to the use of either billy or nightstick.

The stick, Chief Reeves says, is effective in street parades, where it seems to set off the blue uniform, and the billy may be useful upon occasion when you want to call the man on the next beat by rapping the sidewalk with it.

But for purposes of offence, or defense? Never! To strike citizen or taxpayer with? Unthinkable! The Chief explains:

"The skulls of some men are no thicker than heavy cardboard. Others may be a quarter of an inch thick. There are, to be sure, skulls a half an inch thick, but it makes no difference, the use of lignum vitae on the human cranium is exceedingly dangerous."

What IS the practice in Swampscott? Do they run from "tough customers," surrender to the policeman beater? By no means.

Chief Reeves is a jui jitsu expert. The holds, he says, are easily applied and their results quick and certain. Each hold, it is true, has its "break" or "counter," but these are known only to the practised hand. The Chief is familiar with 130 of them.

Accompanied by one of his officers, Mr. Reeves has been demonstrating jiu jitsu in other cities and town. He thinks the time is coming when the billy will be a museum piece, along with the bustle and the Goddard buggy.

It Won't Be Long Now

WITH the right kind of a picture you need few words. There is no "caption" necessary under a rainbow in the sky. You KNOW it is a rainbow.

No words are necessary with this picture by Mr. Opper. One look at the barrel, another look at the poor goat's face, four looks at the four gentlemen in the jury box, and the story is understood.

It's all over but the plunge. We can only earnestly hope, and fervently pray, that the Uncle Sam goat will not skin his nose on the edge of the barrel as he goes in.

H. G. Wells on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

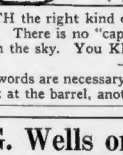
THE task has been accomplished for the great majority of layers. As a result, we can say that one kind of fossil belonged to an animal which lived and died before another kind of animal found fossilised in another layer; and the bewildering variety of life becomes more orderly through receiving an arrangement in time.



H. G. Wells

To take merely the same examples we first mentioned, ammonites are found to be absent from all layers below the coal measures and from all above the chalk, but present in all congenial layers between these limits; while ichthyosaurs, though they also have the chalk as their upper limit, only extend downwards through about two-thirds of the layers in which ammonites are found.

This fundamental principle, that the different layers of the earth's crust can be arranged in a time-sequence is the basis of that department of science palaeontology.

The principle is both fundamental and simple; but there are sometimes difficulties in applying it. Part of the record may have been destroyed or defaced till the life-story it contains becomes illegible; or a whole set of pages may have been crumpled or turned upside down into reverse order (as in the upthrust of some mountain ranges), so that their proper rearrangement is a matter of the greatest difficulty; or an isolated page or chapter from some out-of-the-way corner of the globe may be hard to place.

Happily such difficulties only concern parts of the record; whole chapters of it have the pages all tidily in order, the fossil-writing abundant and easy to interpret.

In most cases these confusions have been analyzed and overcome and the result is that, with rare exceptions, the fossil-bearing rocks of the world can now be assigned to their proper position in the time-scale—their right place among the pages of the Book of Earth.

As a result, the earth's history has been divided up, as this book is divided into books, chapters, sections, and so forth, into subdivisions of various grades.

Two sets of terms are used according as we are thinking in terms of geological time, or in terms of layers of rock.

The main divisions of geological time are usually called Eras; within each Era a number of Periods (or Epochs) are distinguished, and they are further divided into sub-periods.

When, on the other hand, we are speaking of rock-layers, we refer to a system as our main unit, roughly corresponding to the rocks laid down during one Period of time.

The Systems are divided into Formations, and so on down to the narrow zones, which may be likened to the paragraphs of a book.

The Cretaceous System is thus down during the time of the Cretaceous Period.

For our own purpose, the Eras and Periods are all we need trouble about; when we need to go into further detail, we can specify sub-periods by simply using the words "upper," "middle" or "lower."

For instance, the Carboniferous period during which the world's coal was deposited, is the fifth of the six Periods of the third main Era. The Upper Carboniferous, then, is its latest subperiod, for obviously the uppermost layer must have been the last deposited.

The names of the Periods are at present, unfortunately, unfamiliar to the majority of people. They should be as well known as the names of the continents and main countries of the world, or as the great dates of human history.

Now the fact of primary importance in the history of life, displayed by these geological Periods is the orderly succession of living forms. They progress, they progress from simple beginnings to more complex and versatile types.

At the bottom (earliest) of our rock series come rocks with barely a trace of life and then in succession life unfolds.

Comes first the Archeozic Era with the dawn of life. Then the Proterozoic Era, with créatures as highly organized as worms. Then the vast Palaeozoic Era. There are no vertebrata at all and no evidence of land life in its opening period, the Cambrian. Then in a second period, the Ordovician, is the dawn of vertebrate life.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT'LL YOU PAY?

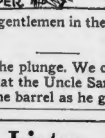
BEEFING about your luck? Complaining that you never get your chance? You'll get your chance all right—When you're ready to pay for it.



Elsie Robinson

Chances are'nt hard to get. They're the commonest thing there is. You can turn almost any combination into a chance, if you really want to. You can turn even misfortune into a chance. Your chance is ready whenever you are . . . but it will cost you plenty.

NO, not in money. In something much more precious and difficult to give than money. If you want your chance you'll have to pay—Yourself.

You think Fate's been keeping your chance away, partner? T'aint. You, yourself, have been passing up your chance because you weren't willing to sacrifice some part of your own cussedness. T'ain't Fate—it's your own laziness, or cowardice, or restlessness, or sensitiveness, or smoothness, or bad temper, or love of day-dreaming that's blocking your chance.

Check that with your own experience. You know it's true. Remember that fine job you had last year, Bill? Great at first, but after a couple of months it got your goat. You got fed up and chucked it all over. Funny, some people don't seem to mind monotony. But you never could stand it. You always liked doing something new. So, you moved on.

Or maybe that wasn't the reason. Maybe you didn't like the boss. Maybe you thought they were trying to put something over on you. Whatever the reason, you quit. Or fussed around until they let you out. And ever since you've been sore—thinking how other people have all the luck.

REMEMBER that time Jim wanted you to marry him, Ella? You liked Jim a lot. But you couldn't bear the thought of leaving the folks and going clear off to Canada. Or perhaps you hated to settle down and give up your nice job and parties and everything. And now Jim's gone. And you're growing old—growing old and discouraged and bitter, envying other women, their homes and husbands and noisy, adorable youngsters.

And so it went. There were chances—plenty of chances. But they were never quite what you wanted. They didn't just fit your nature or desires. So, instead of trying to make yourself fit, you let the chance pass and decided to wait until the Right Thing came along. But—somehow—it never came!

Well, who's to blame. Did Fate deny you? Did Society trick you? OR DID YOU JUST TWO-TIME YOURSELF?

Not better—just different.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 18—Broadway's Bad Boy, Nickey Arnstein, is on the up-and-up again, and the hard-boiled thoroughfare is dimpled in a secret gloat. His marriage a month or so ago to a lady of millions has put him "in the big money" again when the exchequer was low.

Arnstein has drifted in and out of prison, penniless one day and flush the next, married beautiful, rich and talented women and with all his ups and downs invariably turns up unexpectedly as the gracious and fortunate rogue of fiction—smiling and debonair.

He has the Mephistophelean manner of the villian in the play—tall, engaging and fashionably attired. He has black, piercing eyes, a glossy mustache and patent leather hair and can modulate his voice to a drawing room purr or talk out of the side of his mouth, prison style.

HIS amazing display of bravado was when the police of all cities were trailing him in connection with the $5,000,000 Wall Street bond theft. Nickey in an open automobile drove alongside a police parade down Fifth avenue, and with insinuating mockery stood up and cheered the pageant.

An hour later he dropped into headquarters to give himself up. His marriage to Fannie Brice was considered an "epic of Broadway love." The devotion of the actress to him, despite his devious escapades, reads like a chapter from the life of a romantic Apache.

With a twisted smile of suffering she sang "My Man" so effectively the night after his arrest that it softened the pawn-broking heart of the late Arnold Rothstein at a front row table at the Frolic. He sent for her and turned over $100,000 in bonds to bail Nickey out of durance vile.

BUT Nickey could not be content with only one love in his adventuresome life, and at last Miss Brice divorced him. Arnstein vanished, "grievously stricken," he said. And now as Jules W. Arnstein, he and his bride are honeymooning in a swanky Sutton Place home—the social scoot of the Morgans and Vanderbilts.

Self-appointed cops who guard parked cars in the theatrical zone have become in instances, terrorizing brigands, and many are charging an alliance between them and regularly appointed police. Certain side streets are open for parking during theater time. While a car was being parked a guard pops out of nowhere and gives himself a halo of authority. The motorist who does not tip him in advance is likely to return to find the door handles of his car broken off, the license plate removed and disfiguring scratches on the paint.

NEW YORK luncheons, as though not expensive enough, what with nickel soup 80 cents a plate, are now featuring costly favors. A luncheon without the favor is as out of date as the polka. The cheapest of souvenirs average $5 each and range upward to $25. The pinnacle of such profligacy was reached last week by an opera singer. At the plate of each of her 30 women guests was a monogrammed cigarette case costing $175.

"One does not," writes a Jersey columnist, "ever see O. O. McIntyre lunching in such literary haunts as Sardi's, the Algonquin and Diniy Moore's. Can it be he thinks himself a little better than his fellow-scribblers?"

Not better—just different.
